Rejection of British Demands Regarded Certain

British Delegation Expected To Depart For Home—Possible That Other Delegates at Hague Parley Effect a Separate Agreement.

The Hague, Aug. 9 (AP).—Rejection of British demands by other nations participating here in the conference of the government on reparations, and departure of the British delegation for home was accepted generally in conference circles today as an inevitable development of the next day or so.

It was regarded that the finance committee of the conference would either tomorrow or soon after reject the resolution of Philip Snowden, head of the British delegation for a sub-committee to revise the Young reparations plan.

In the three days just past Mr. Snowden, who is chancellor of the exchequer in the new British Labor government, has affirmed so positively his government's intention not to accept a lessened share in the distribution of German reparations that recession from his stand was considered highly improbable and hardly possible.

The attitude of the other nations concerned, notably France, Italy, and Belgium, was just as firm in the opposite direction. These nations held the Young plan should be accepted without alteration, as it stands now; that while not perfect it represented the best possible arrangement under the circumstances.

May Effect Separate Agreement.

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Reuter's correspondent at the reparations conference at The Hague today stated he had been informed in reliable quarters that Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, was prepared to leave The Hague next Monday unless he obtains a satisfactory reply tomorrow to his demand for "protection of the British taxpayer."

Meanwhile members of the other delegations considered how to keep the conference alive without the presence of the British. It was possible, it was said, for the remainder of the governments to go ahead without Great Britain, effecting a separate agreement with Germany and leaving Great Britain to do the same.

The principal objection to this arrangement was that it was not conciliatory and that while it settled Europe's difficulties in one direction it raised other difficulties in another. It was also pointed out the proposed International Bank required British cooperation.

Snowden Stand Approved.

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—The rare spectacle of a British ministry being supported by majorities of all parties is now witnessed in the general endorsement of The Hague stand of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, against the Young reparations plan.

The London Press, regardless of ordinary party affiliations, today chorused its approval of the main contentions of the Labor chancellor and expressed hopes that he will remain firm.

RUNNING BATTLE BETWEEN GUARDS AND RUM RUNNERS

Detroit, Aug. 9 (AP).—Coast guards and rum runners engaged in a spectacular pistol battle in the Detroit river early today with crafts of the rival forces racing down the center of the river less than 100 feet apart.

The federal forces were under command of Jonah T. Hagglove, chief boatswain's mate. While patrolling the river they sighted a speedboat towing a loaded towboat coming out from behind one of the small islands off the Ecorse shore. Hagglove ordered the three men to halt, but a volley of shots was his answer. Hagglove and the two coast guardsmen under his command emptied their pistols twice before the runners escaped toward the Canadian shore.

SHIFTING WIND SAVES TOWN FROM DESTRUCTION

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 9 (AP).—After a battle of many hours to save the little town of Rennie, Man., from destruction by forest fires, a shift in the wind late yesterday brought relief, and drove the flames away from the settlement. Roaring through bushlands, the flames had reached within half a mile of Rennie, forcing the fire-fighters back foot by foot. The women and children of the town had prepared to depart on a special train, made up and ready at the station from the early morning hours.

TENT MEETING REVIVALS BEING CONDUCTED HERE

Coulson, converted cowboy of Texas, preaching to a large congregation. Sunday services are announced at 3 p. m.

New Series of Flights in View

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Following closely upon the successful trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, a new series of trans-oceanic flights by airplanes appeared in prospect today.

At Omsk, Siberia, five Soviet fliers took off on the next lap of a 12,200 mile flight from Moscow to New York, via the Aleutian Islands. Their amphibian plane, the Land of the Soviets, made the first 1,365 miles at an average speed of 100 miles an hour.

Meanwhile, Dieudonne Coste and a Swiss flying combination of three men were preparing for flights from Europe to New York.

Coste, whose previous attempts ended in failure, announced at Paris that he would take off tomorrow if weather conditions permit. While Coste merely announced he would take off on a "long distance flight" it generally was assumed he would head for New York.

The trio of Swiss airmen, Kaeser, Tschopp and Luscher, left Le Bourget field, near Paris, yesterday for Lisbon, Portugal, to await a favorable opportunity for a take-off. They said their plane, of French make, is capable of 50 hours in the air with an average speed of 100 miles an hour. They hoped to reach New York in 40 hours.

At Ivigtut, Greenland, where they have been stranded for months by fog and motor mishaps, the Swedish fliers, Captain Albin Ahrenburg and Lieutenant Axel Floden, are still determined to complete their flight from Stockholm to this city. In a cablegram to Olof H. Lamm, Swedish consul-general here, they said they hoped to reach New York by the end of this month.

Activities at Powell Airport

Eric Lindgren Will Make Two Parachute Jumps—Student Aviators Ready to Take Air in Solo Flights.

Activities at the Powell airport are increasing each day as students now being trained acquire more experience in the air. Paul Dane of Woodstock and New York, a commercial illustrator, took up flying sometime ago under the guidance of Chief Pilot Mollineaux at the local field and is now able to solo. Mr. Dane has passed his instruction period under the supervision of Mr. Mollineaux and is now doing solo work in preparation to securing his license to fly commercially.

John Krehmke, chief mechanic at the airport, has also taken up flying and is now about ready to take to the air in solo flights. Fifty hours solo work is required before a pilot is granted a license.

Saturday and Sunday Eric Lindgren will make two parachute jumps at the Powell field. The jumps will be made at 8 o'clock each evening just prior to darkness. Eric who sprained his ankle quite severely at the Saugerties airport some time ago is now able to jump again and on Wednesday he made his first jump since his injury at Orange Lake. Jumping from a plane he brought his chute down on the lake to thrill a large crowd of people.

On September 7 the big Ford trimotored plane of the Reid, Murdock Company, wholesale distributors of the "Monarch" brand of groceries in Chicago will arrive at the Powell airport. This plane is fitted out as a traveling grocery store and has been making a tour about the country in the interest of the products handled by the firm.

The plane will come to Kingston from Beacon and will go from here to Albany. A representative of the firm has been in town making arrangements with Mr. Powell for use of the field on that day.

One of the new Bird planes is expected to arrive at the field shortly. This is a new plane made in Brooklyn.

Later in the season an air meet will be put on at the field at which time many visiting planes will be invited to participate and there will be stunts and passenger flying.

Fatal Explosion On Oil Tanker

One Killed and Eight Injured in Explosion and Fire on Standard Oil Tanker at Bayonne.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—One man was killed and eight injured in an explosion this morning aboard the oil tanker William Rockefeller at anchor off Bayonne, N. J. The tanker, a flaming torch, was pushed away from the oil docks by tugs and toward the lower bay in New York harbor.

The detonation could be felt in Staten Island, lower Manhattan and all along the New Jersey waterfront.

Burning oil was spread over the water through which tugs, attracted to the scene, had difficulty in finding a clear passage to rescue the eleven injured members of the crew. The vessel, one of the largest of the carriers of the New Jersey company, carried a crew of between thirty and forty men. The fate of the other members of the crew was not immediately ascertained but it was believed several of them is not all the unaccounted for were ashore.

Officials said an attempt would be made to ground the burning tanker on the mud flats off Bay Ridge, Brooklyn.

Professor Rieser Died Thursday

Organist at St. Mary's Church for Over 45 Years—Was a Capable Instructor and Student of Music.

Professor William H. Rieser, organist at St. Mary's Church for more than 45 years and one of the most renowned instructors of piano in this section, died Thursday about 11 p. m. at the Benedictine Hospital.

Although ill health had overshadowed Professor Rieser for some time, he never ceased to continue his profession. He faithfully presided at the organ in St. Mary's Church every Sunday and daily worked with his music pupils until the severeness of his illness caused his removal to the Benedictine Hospital. On June 30 of this year he celebrated his 45th anniversary as organist of St. Mary's Church.

His latest studio and home was at 83 Hoffman street, he having removed recently from 69 West Chester street, where many of the now prominent pianists first learned the rudiments of execution on the musical instrument. Besides being a most capable instructor, he was a deep student of music, having been associated with some of the most eminent musicians and writers of music.

He studied under Mason and Morgan, two of the most prominent artists in Professor Rieser's early years and was associated with the late Victor Herbert, Garrett Smith, John Orth and the equally famous Josephy. Besides bringing the accomplishments of these great men to local students of piano, he also directed the Rondout Social Mannerchor and the Liederkranz Singing Society, when these two organizations were known as leaders in local music circles. He was honored with the vice-presidency of the New York State Music Teachers' Association.

Fraternally he was a member of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus and official organist of the society.

Surviving the eminent professor, who was born in this city, the son of the late William and Henrietta Nieldinger Rieser, is his wife, Mary Cecilia Vilwig, a member of an old Virginia family, who like her husband has attained fame in the profession of music. Mrs. Rieser possesses a beautiful soprano voice, which has been heard in prominent concert halls of this country, on phonograph records and over the radio. She is a sister to John J. O'Reilly of Garden City, L. I.

Professor Rieser also leaves to mourn his demise two step-daughters, Mrs. Clarence H. Drew of Newton, N. J., and Mrs. Harold N. Brodhead of Queens, L. I.

AN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION AT RONDOUT CREEK BRIDGE

Thursday evening the Essex sedan of George Winters of Rosendale, and the Ford coupe of Miss Ethel Tyrrell Reymont of Chicago, Ill., were in collision at the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge. The police department was notified that Miss Reymont had failed to stop and a call was sent to the State Troopers at Highland where the car was halted by Sergeant Lockhart, and two officers from Kingston brought Miss Reymont back to police headquarters. It developed that Miss Reymont had stopped after the collision and after an argument as to who was at fault for the crash had driven on. Mr. Winters and Miss Reymont finally agreed to settle the case between them, and she was allowed to proceed.

INJURED WHEN FORD CRASHES INTO POLE.

Wednesday evening a new Ford runabout of A. Keeing of Philadelphia was wrecked when it collided with a pole near the Genthner place at High Falls, town of Saugerties. Keeing was taken to the Beeres Sanitarium and treated by Dr. Emerick who found him suffering from a wound on the forehead which required two stitches to close, a sprained shoulder and bruised back. The Ford a complete wreck was taken to the Clum repair shop. Two companions escaped injury and left the scene before their identity was learned. The car failed to make a sharp turn and ran into a pole.

DECLARE CLOSING OF ROAD UNNECESSARY.

High Woods residents have filed a protest with the town board of the town of Saugerties over the closing of the High Woods road during construction. The residents claim the closing of the road is unnecessary. The board after hearing argument of residents over the closing passed a resolution recommending that County Superintendent James F. Loughran be requested to see that the road is not closed except when necessary.

Fear for Swiss Aviators.

Le Bourget, France, Aug. 9 (AP).—Airfield officials here today feared for the safety of three Swiss aviators who left here yesterday afternoon for Lisbon on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight to New York. Nothing has been heard of them since they left late yesterday afternoon for Lisbon, which they should have reached early this morning.

Pilot Kaeser, Navigator Tschopp and Mechanic Luscher, who have been flying only since 1927, planned to dare the difficult westward crossing of the Atlantic despite their few years of experience in flying.

Stock Drop of a Billion Dollars

Most Sweeping Reaction In History of New York Stock Exchange Follows Increase in Rediscount Rate.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The most sweeping reaction in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, which wiped out more than a billion dollars in quoted values in 15 minutes of trading, took place today as a result of the panicky liquidation of stocks inspired by the unexpected increase from 5 to 6 pr cent in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, the latest official blow at securities speculation.

Prices of scores of active stocks broke $5 to $25 a share on opening transactions of 5,000 to 25,000 shares, but a brisk rally ensued before the end of the first half hour.

As happens in all major stock market declines, thousands of panicky investors and speculators threw over their holdings "at the market" at the opening, taking terrific losses because of the overnight withdrawal of bids by pools and other market sponsors.

Wealthy individuals and professional traders bought stocks "for a turn" on the opening decline with the result that a sharp rally was quickly under way.

United States Steel Common, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, American Telephone, Packard and scores of other leading industrials and rails quickly rallied 1 to 6 points from their opening levels.

New Fires Break Out in Northwest

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 9 (AP).—The imprint of the forest fire—gaunt, smoking stumps bristling from charred hillsides and valleys—continued to widen throughout the northwest today despite the efforts of thousands of men to check the conflagrations.

The fires thus far have taken one life and caused damage estimated in the millions of dollars. Frank Franz of Seattle was fatally injured while fighting a fire near Chanapecosh Hot Springs, Wash., when he was crushed by a large boulder.

With new fires breaking out sporadically in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Manitoba, Canada, a murky haze blanketing the entire area made combat work difficult and early discovery of other fires impossible. The fires were burning over widely scattered areas. An accurate count of the blazes was impossible, but in nearly every national forest of the region from one to a dozen fires were raging.

The forest service at Missoula, Mont., reported that the situation in that area was greatly improved, but several major blazes were still beyond control. Most of the fires in eastern Washington had been extinguished, but in the western part of the state the Ranier Park fire, covering 900 acres, was out of control. Additional fighters were sent to help the 200 men already on the ground. Nearly a thousand men were fighting 30 other blazes in the state. Eight of these were uncontrolled.

Three old fires jumped out of control in the Selway and Clearwater forests of Idaho and several new ones were discovered. The situation in Oregon, which had been serious for three days, was improved.

Lack of rain, frequent thunder storms, low humidity and careless campers were making this one of the most disastrous seasons for many years forest officials said.

CLAMBAKE OF V. F. W. TO BE HELD SUNDAY.

The first annual clambake of Joyce-Schirick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will be held Sunday, August 11, at Walton's Grove on Lucas avenue, rain or shine. A good time is promised all who attend and a cordial invitation is extended to the public. Cars will leave the Central Post Office between 1 and 2:30 p. m., which will afford transportation for those who have not cars.

Dancing will precede the bake on the big pavillion at the grove, as a means of working up an appetite for the fine menu to be served. Those who enjoy the bake will be given another opportunity to dance following the meal. Maisenhelder's Commanders will furnish music for the dances in the afternoon and evening.

Federal Agents Raid Four Places

Arrest Mrs. Cioni of 20 Sycamore Street and Raymond Mino of Mino's Center Hotel—Raid Two Places in Greene County.

Two raids in the immediate vicinity of Kingston and two raids in Greene county constituted the day's work of the federal agents working out of Kingston enforcement office on Thursday.

Before the agents left Kingston they visited the premises at 20 Sycamore street, this city, where they found a grocery store being operated. Executing a search warrant they found a quantity of alleged beer, wine and apple jack. The alleged liquors and 288 bottles of beer were seized. Mrs. Amelia Cioni was arrested on a charge of possession and on being arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Connelly demanded a hearing. The hearing was set down for September 3 and bail in the sum of $500 was provided.

From Kingston the agents went to Hunter where they stopped off at the "Old Factory" gas station and roadside stand. There the agents entered the place and found a slot machine on the premises. After playing the machine for several minutes they were joined by a number of customers and after establishing their reputation at the slot machine called for a drink. They were served with alleged whiskey and William E. Huggins was arrested as the proprietor of the place and charged with possession and sale. On being arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Connelly he waived examination and was held in $1,500 bail for Federal court.

At the Atkins Hotel in Hunter the agents executed a search warrant and after finding alleged alcoholic liquors the proprietor, Philip Atkins, was arrested charged with possession. He was held by the commissioner in $500 bail pending a hearing later.

Mino Held in $1,500 Bail

On the way back to Kingston the agents stopped in at Mino's Center Hotel at Lake Katrine and purchased a drink of alleged whiskey. They placed under arrest Raymond Mino charged with sale and possession and on being arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Connelly today he demanded a hearing and bail was fixed at $1,500 pending a hearing on August 30 on a charge of sale and possession.

After the two visits at Hunter the agents stopped off at other places but the town had been warned of the arrival of the agents and they were suspected and as a result the proprietors of speakeasies were on the guard.

TO BAR USE OF RIFLES BY PROHIBITION AGENTS

Washington, Aug. 9 (AP).—Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today he was preparing to bar the use of rifles by prohibition agents in several communities. The commissioner said no general order would be issued but he would discuss the matter by correspondence with his administrators.

Doran said his decision still would permit agents to use their service revolvers in the densely populated communities. In sparsely settled districts, especially in the mountains, the agents, he added, needed rifles for protection.

The situation in the Detroit area where one of the agents recently lost his life, he continued, was well in hand. "We are better off there than we have ever been before," he said.

ATTACKED FOR REFUSAL TO JOIN ACTORS' ASSOCIATION

Los Angeles, Aug. 9 (AP)—It was learned this morning that Frank Goddard, actor and boxer, had been attacked and seriously injured and his companion, Harry Deck, actor, badly beaten near the entrance of a motion picture studio yesterday. The men charged they had been attacked after refusing to join the Actor's Equity Association.

Goddard was taken to a hospital where he underwent an emergency operation in what authorities said was an attempt to save his life. Police said he had been kicked in the stomach.

Deck said Goddard had come to his assistance after six men had attacked him.

Root, Albion farmer, returning from market in Buffalo, found the body. Nearby he picked up a shotgun with the shell exploded. Robinson lived with his mother on Ridge road here. No reason for the apparent suicide could be learned.

Killed in Grave Diggers' Strike

Queens Grave Diggers Charge Bus Load of Strike Breakers With Fatal Result—Strike in Effect for a Week.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—One man was shot dead today when a crowd of striking grave diggers charged a bus load of strike breakers near the Calvary Cemetery, Queens.

Stanley Zasadzinski, 25, of Brooklyn, one of the strikers, was the man killed.

Police said he was shot by Philip Nunziato, a foreman of the Calvary Cemetery, who was on the bus with the strike breakers. Nunziato fired into the crowd of strikers when they started hurling bricks and stones at the bus as it neared the cemetery.

Nunziato was taken to the Newtown police station. No charge was placed against him pending an investigation.

The strikers were gathered in a vacant lot, preparing to take their stations for picket duty, when they saw the bus coming. Gathering their missiles, they rushed for the vehicle. Zasadzinski dropped with Nunziato's first shot and the charge ended.

Between 600 and 700 men are involved in the strike at the Calvary Cemetery. First the grave diggers walked out. They were followed by members of the Funeral Drivers' Union.

The strike has been in effect for nearly a week and the grave diggers shortage has forced cemetery officials to place caskets, which average about 25 a day, into long shallow ditches pending the end of the strike when they can be moved into family burial plots.

Deny Prison Riot Charges

Republican Leaders Declare If Outbreaks Were Due To Lack of Funds Delinquency Was on The Part of The Democrats.

Albany, Aug. 9 (AP).—The recent rioting of Clinton and Auburn convicts echoed today in a statement of Republican leaders denying responsibility for any lack of funds for penal institutions and placing the blame, if any, on the Democratic administration "for its lack of appreciation of the seriousness of the condition."

The statement was made by Senator Charles J. Hewitt and Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson, chairmen of the finance committees of the Legislature, "in reply to charges made by Minority Leader Maurice Bloch and other Democrats that the Legislature had not provided adequate funds for the state's prisons."

"The record shows clearly that if the recent outbreaks at Auburn and Dannemora were due in any way to a lack of funds as charged by the Democrats, the delinquency was on the part of the Democratic administration," said the statement.

The appropriation for construction at Auburn prison was increased $300,000 over the amount recommended in the governor's executive budget, and for construction at Dannemora the amount was increased $550,000 by the finance chairmen, they said.

They pointed to appropriations since 1924 for new cell block construction at Auburn and Sing Sing and for the new state prison at Attica, bids for which will be received September 5.

The statement further declares that "in 1925 Governor Smith vetoed items for improvements at prisons aggregating $215,000."

On the recommendation of Governor Smith in 1924, they said, the new state's prison at Wingdale, Dutchess county, was turned into a hospital by legislative act.

"The number of guards in prisons have been increased from 356 in 1924 to 543 in 1929, every request for additional guards from the prison department having been met," the fiscal chairman said. "The salaries of the guards have been increased four times since 1918, when they ranged from $1,000 to $1,400 to the present salary average, which is from $1,600 to $2,000."

Seven Cases in Police Court

Solomon Mogal of Yonkers, forfeited $5 cash bail, for failure to answer to the charge. Fred Feustel of Queen Village and Samuel B. Johnson of Lyndhurst, N. J., were each fined $5 for passing the red light.

James U. Robertson of Kerhonkson was arrested early this morning charged with public intoxication on Chambers street. Later in police court he was fined $5.

Thmoas Mellady and Frank Reynolds, both strangers, were found intoxicated on Cornell street this morning, and placed under arrest. Mellady said he had been working on the tunnel job at New Hamburgh. He was sentenced to three days in the county jail. Reynolds was given 15 days in jail.

Graf Zeppelin Approaching the English Coast

London, Aug. 9 (AP)—A message received at Croydon, London's airport at 7:30 p. m., E. S. T. stated the dirigible Graf Zeppelin was approaching the English coast.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Zeppelin Works received a short radio from the Graf Zeppelin [illegible] p. m., E. S. T., as 42 north latitude, 40 west longitude. The message added, "All is well on board."

The position given was almost exactly 1,760 miles due east of New York city.

Zeppelin officials today believed Dr. Hugo Eckener would turn somewhat northeast from his southerly course today and fly over northern France instead of retracing his westward journey by Gibraltar and the Rhone valley.

Unfavorable winds were reported prevailing between the Azores and Spain.

The big airship was expected to hurry across France in order to reach her home port late Saturday night.

Declines Invitation.

Berlin, Aug. 9 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, today declined by wireless to the ministry of transportation an invitation to fly over Berlin on Germany's "Fourth of July," Constitution Day, August 11.

His message indicated at the same time that he was certain of reaching Friedrichshafen on Saturday.

His reply read: "Heartly thanks for your invitation but the airship will, as far as can be foreseen, already be in Friedrichshafen by August 10."

SOUTH FIRST TO GET SHARE OF FARM FUND

Washington, Aug. 9 (AP).—Agriculturists of the south, rather than those of the great wheat regions, are the first to get a share of the Federal Farm Board's $500,000,000 revolving fund.

Recognizing the menace of the Mediterranean fruit fly and the need for emergency aid to minimize the loss from its depredations, the board's first loan has been alloted to the Florida United Growers and the Florida Citrus Growers Exchange to help those cooperatives in the preparation of this year's crop so it can be marketed.

The money is to be used to equip distribution plants of the organizations with heating and pre-cooling facilities to meet government requirements for treatment of fruit which has been exposed to the fly to prevent spread of the larvae into unaffected regions.

ELLENVILLE CLERGY PROTEST IMPROPER STREET ATTIRE

Ellenville clergy appeared before the village board at the last meeting and requested that something be done to stop the practice of summer visitors appearing on the street in such scanty attire. The Rev. George J. Ketner, Lutheran pastor, the Rev. George R. Hiatt of St. John's, the Rev. George E. Wright of the M. E. Church, and the Rev. Perry Van Dyke of the Reformed Church appeared before the board. The protest against "shorts" was heard by the board and Mayor Herman S. Wells promised to do what could be done toward stopping the practice. The Rev. Mr. Ketner stated that the practice of women wearing abbreviated costume was an "insult to the decent women of Ellenville" and said the practice had been stopped in Kingston and Liberty. He asked the passing of an ordinance prohibiting abbreviated dress by women on the streets of the village.

INSTITUTION THREATENED WITH WATER SHORTAGE

The Institution for Defective Delinquents at Napanoch is threatened with a water shortage. Restrictions have been placed on the use of water and Dr. Walter N. Thayer, Jr., superintendent, will place in operation a pump to take water from a deep well on the premises. Water for construction now going on at the institution as well as for watering the gardens and lawns is being hauled from the creek. There are 741 inmates at the place.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of Ulster, in the above entitled action, and bearing date July 26th, 1929, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said Judgment named will sell at public auction on the 28th day of August, 1929, at twelve o'clock noon, (Daylight Saving Time) at the front door of the Court House, Wall Street, Kingston, New York, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

ALL THAT CERTAIN LOT OF LAND, situate, lying and being on the westerly side of Chambers Street in the City of Kingston, N. Y., and more particularly bounded and described as follows: Commencing at a point on the westerly side of Chambers Street where the southeast line of John Muldoon let intersects said street and at the northwesterly corner of the house situate on the premises hereby conveyed, thence southerly along Chambers Street forty feet more or less to the line of John Buxton (formerly); thence westerly along the northerly side of said Buxton let fifty feet and six inches more or less to an old fence; thence northerly along said fence to the southerly line of Muldoon let forty feet more or less; thence easterly along the southerly line of said Muldoon let sixty-one feet and six inches more or less to the place of beginning.

Being the same premises conveyed to Abram Alcon by John D. Schoonmaker and Alberta B. Schoonmaker, his wife, by deed dated June 20th, 1928, and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book of Deeds No. 410 at page 268.

Dated, July 26, 1929.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

The Pas, Man.—The movies outdone in real life: A passenger train arrived after a 3-mile dash through burning forests with flames shooting 50 feet high on both sides of the track. The dash was undertaken when the constant approach of the fire threatened to destroy the train as it stood.

Memphis, Tenn. — Psychology scores again. Miss Vera Stone had hiccoughed 56 days until she was "syked" out of it by having her mind diverted to another worry. The effect was obtained by a strong injection of drugs, the hospital experts explained.

Cambridge, Mass.—Owen D. Young was voted to be "the greatest business man in America," by 300 business men from 27 states and three foreign countries enrolled at the Harvard Business School summer session. Henry Ford was second, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon third, and President Hoover fourth.

Boston—Letter received at the office of the railway mail service here: "Dear Sirs: The Evening Bulletin has not been coming regularly. Today I got yesterday's paper and when I get yesterday's paper today the next day I get the paper of the day before the day of the paper I got the day before. Last year I received the paper of the day before and never once was there a miscue. Please fix it."

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Entries are now being received for the "first annual men's international pajama golf tournament" at the West Palm Beach municipal golf course. The tournament is open to all with the only stipulation that players appear for matches clad only in "evening dress."

New York—Man's inhumanity to man apparently is due to lack of publicity. Local papers carried the pathetic story of a mother watching over the body of her 11-year-old daughter at the morgue because she lacked burial expenses, and within a few hours contributions totaling several thousands of dollars had been made, several burial plots offered and material aid for the mother arranged.

New York—Albert Buschko, stowaway on the Graf Zep, probably holds the record for having travelled farthest to have seen least of an adventurer. Locked in the Graf's storeroom until landed, he was at once incarcerated in a detention cell, and, returning on the Thuringia, will spend the entire trip in another locked room.

Ottawa—While on the subject of stowaways: Clyde Patch, of the National Museum, relates (second hand) that sparrows on Cape Breton Island, wishing to cross to Newfoundland have been known to perch on the back of migrating geese and to "take off" after completing the long trip over Cabot Strait.

COURT DECISION HITS GRAIN DEALS.

Chicago (AP).—Board of trade deals are "gambling debts," an Illinois circuit court has ruled in a case now before the appellate court—a decision which may be of great importance in the financial world.

It concerns the legality of contracts between customers and members of the Chicago board of trade for purchase and sale of grain and provision futures, bids and offers, subsequently resulting in speculation.

William McCabe, a farmer, was sued by James K. Riordon, a member of the board, to foreclose a mortgage and recover on two notes for a total of $55,000, given in settlement of losses for alleged speculation on the board.

McCabe held that the notes were given to satisfy gambling debts and asked for their cancellation.

Decision of the lower court, should it be affirmed, places on board of trade firms the duty of investigating the need of each customer for the grain and provisions he orders, his financial ability to accept and pay for all contracts, and his intention to make delivery or to receive shipment and not to close out before expiration of the option or maturing of the future contract.

Counsel for McCabe contends that it is just as easy to gamble on the board of trade contracts as to do a legitimate business. He held that the volume of transactions by McCabe in the three years before he withdrew from the market, involving more than 27,000,000 bushels of grain, should have convinced the board that he was not engaged in legitimate business. Gambling debts are unrecognized by law.

Have No Effect on Snakes

The belief is commonly held in some parts of the country that the odor of snake gourd and snake calabash vines is unpleasant to snakes and will keep them away. Negroes in the South plant the vines around their houses as a protection against snakes. United States Department of Agriculture observations do not bear out this belief. The department has issued a statement that so far as its investigation goes, there is no plant that will repel snakes.

Ancient Aids to Eyesight

When the eyesight of Egypt's wise men grew feeble from study they used magnifying glasses to make the stone tablets and papyrus rolls easier to read. This is indicated by pieces of round glass from Egypt, one of which, now in the Ashmolean collection, may date back to the first dynasty of Egypt, or about 3500 B. C. That magnifying glasses were known in the famous civilization of Crete, about 1500 B. C., had been shown by two crystal lenses discovered in the Cretan ruins.

Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

James H. Hare, veteran newspaper photographer, and his wife, formerly Ellen Crapper of Yorkshire, England, who have come to this city from their home in Flatbush, Brooklyn, many times within the past 20 years, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last Friday night at the Half Moon Hotel, Coney Island. Mr. Hare who regards Kingston as one of the most desirable cities he ever visited, has traveled the world over as a press photographer in quest of flood, fire and even battle scenes. The pioneer photographer, whose connection with the Colonial city was brought about by the marriage of his daughter, Dorothy, to David Kieffer of Kingston and Lake Katrine, has covered assignments including the Russo-Japanese War, Cleveland's inauguration, Orville Wright's trial flight in the first airplane, and the Chateau Thierry battle of the World War. His experience with such events of world wide importance had a tendency to make him look upon his golden wedding anniversary as an every-day occurrence.

Born in London

Hare was born in London, Oct. 3, 1856, married Ellen Crapper, of Yorkshire, Aug. 2, 1879, and has five children. He came here in 1899 and was war correspondent and photographer in nine world conflicts, the Cuban revolt, the Spanish-American War, Russo-Japanese War, disorders in Haiti, Venezuela, Panama, Mexico, the Balkan War and the World War, on fronts in France, Belgium and Italy.

James Hare took graphic, living pictures when most newspapers were still using pen and ink sketches. He flew over New York city in a balloon to take pictures and nearly lost his life when the gas bag fell into Long Island Sound.

R. J. Collier, former proprietor of Collier's Weekly, said of him: "There is no man in his profession who has seen so much, worked so hard, borne himself with greater courage."

Decorated By Japanese

Hare has a medal from the Japanese government and testimonials from scores of associates throughout the country. Friends in Flatbush of 30 years respect him greatly.

Guests at the golden wedding dinner included members of Mr. Hare's family. They included Mr. and Mrs. George Hare of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Kieffer, of Englewood, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Rockwell, of Yonkers; Marjorie Hare, Mr. and Mrs. David Kieffer, of Kingston, and A. M. Freer.

Paris Porch Frock Is Dainty for Home Wear

Topped with a white pique epaulet collar, a cotton print is a cheerful picture over a cup of breakfast coffee, says the Woman's Home Companion. The collar, pockets and plaits of the dress have particular style. Paris style. Collar edges, pocket edges, plait edges repeat the smart diagonal. With each diagonal edge a true straight line, the cutting and running together is accomplished speedily. The front is made with the upper straight and the skirt slightly circular. Pockets lap over and plaits are inset. The back is in three parts, the upper, the yoke and the skirt.

Milady in Long Gloves With Sleeveless Frock

Long gloves have reappeared in Paris after an absence of many years, since some of the biggest names in fashion making declared for half and quarter sleeves for midsummer dress.

They are in the shops in many varieties of wash gloves of elbow length, or slightly shorter. Nearly all the models are buttonless pull-ons.

Glove makers so far are waiting for demand to regulate their output of long gloves. Some of them are frankly skeptical about women's acceptance of long sleeves for midsummer. They base their doubt, they say, on the modern woman's insistence upon the least possible covering.

Pull-on gloves with 6-inch cuff are the model most worn with the informal suits made of silk or wool that are an important phase of summer styles. Nearly everybody wears washable suede in Paris, the weight of the glove varying with the weight of the fabric in the costume.

With tweed costumes the rule of stockings and gloves of matching tint still holds.

Smock Is Supplanting Old-Fashioned Dress

The smock is a versatile garment. It serves the artist, the housewife and the working girl. In some homes it has supplanted the housedress, while in various shops, factories and offices, it has been adopted as a uniform.

Because it is the function of the smock to protect the clothing beneath, many women are prone to neglect its appearance. They feel that it doesn't matter how soiled the smock becomes as long as the garments under the smock remain clean and dainty.

Since smocks are usually made of washable fabrics, the laundering of them is a simple matter. It is poor policy to wear a smock until it becomes badly soiled for more than one reason. Frequent light laundering is less likely to wear out a garment than rubbing a badly soiled one and it is easier on the laundress as well. The practical woman, whether in business or at home, will have several smocks on hand, so that she may consign them to the laundry bag as soon as they show signs of soil.

Jersey Will Not Cling to Taffeta Underslip

Have you often wondered whether there wasn't some way that you could keep your jersey costumes from clinging so to your figure? It seems to be one of the greatest drawbacks to this popular fabric—but at last it can be eliminated. Chanel has introduced a soft taffeta underskirt with her newest jersey suit and it promises to be universally adopted. The jersey will not cling to the taffeta and the taffeta is so light that it will not rustle. This is a very good idea for loosely woven tweeds as well.

Perfect 36 Now Is 38, Says Paris Authority

The average and ideal American figure for which American buyers order French models is not the mythical 36, according to a Paris authority, but a substantial and recognized 38 for the adult figure.

Athletics and outdoor life have had much to do with developing American women from the boasted 36 measurement to 38.

Stock Exchange Term

The term "preference shares" is used in England as the equivalent of the American preferred stock. These rank ahead of the ordinary shares, besides very often being entitled to a cumulative dividend.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 9, 1929.

A general withdrawal of Central and South American nations from the League of Nations at Geneva is predicted by J. D. Arosemena, foreign secretary of Panama. "My impression," he says, "is that most of the Latin-American nations are in the League purely as a matter of pride, and will leave it as soon as the ostentation palls." He is in favor of a strong union of the nations of the Western Hemisphere. This would be a natural development if the New World nations abandoned the League. It has long been the dream of our own people to make Pan-America a reality, with this country playing the leading part because of its size, strength and eminence.

Three thousand American typewriters have been shipped to Turkey. They are equipped with a new keyboard containing the 31 letters of the new Turkish alphabet, made up of the Latin characters used by western nations. This marks a revolution in Turkish education, business and life. For the first time since the Turkish tongue was reduced to writing, there will be no more use for the stylus and camel's hair brush. The rat-a-tat-tat of the typewriters may drown out the sound of the muezzin call. Learning to read and write in the new style, ordered by President Kemal last year, will now be less difficult. The typewriter will probably do more than any other agency to hasten the enlightenment and modernization of Turkey.

A well dressed and intelligent young man, seeking employment in New York, collapsed on Broadway, muttering something about hunger. A sympathetic crowd instantly gathered about, eager to help him. They brought him food, and raised a collection of $100, and someone then took him away to provide a comfortable lodging for him. This sympathy was human and natural. People are charitable, singly and in the mass. But whether they show it or not is largely accidental. Their kindness is a matter of casual sentiment, rather than organized purpose. It is emotional rather than intelligent. Real kindness on the part of society would have provided employment for that young man, making it unnecessary for him to starve to preserve his self-respect. With all our organized charity, we do not manage such things very well.

One of the things about the seventeen-day flight of the St. Louis Robin and its two admirable pilots was the sane way it ended. Everything was still going nicely. The men were all right. The plane was all right. The engine was all right. The weather was behaving fairly well. Yet the man in command of the test on the ground sent up a note to the two flyers requesting them to come down, because everything worth proving had been proved. They flew a little longer to think it over. Then they came down. Here was a sanity too frequently lacking in the making of endurance records in these days. Everyone intimately connected with the flight must have felt a little temptation to let it go on until machine or men collapsed. Good sense, however, prevailed, thus making the flight a splendid and successful experiment rather than a daredevil stunt.

Individuals who cannot afford the time or the money to take the round-the-world cruise of the Graf Zeppelin may send themselves a letter or postcard by that route and possibly cash in handsomely later on the anticipated value for canceled stamps. By August 2, before the giant dirigible had come much more than half of the way across the Atlantic, 50 pounds of this so-called air mail had been assembled. The charges were $3.50 for a letter, plus the 5 cents for postage, and $1.75 for a postcard, plus regular postage. The Zeppelin will travel from Lakehurst, N. J., to Friedrichshafen, its base, then on to Tokio and Los Angeles, reaching Lakehurst again, it is hoped, in about three weeks. The mail that goes along on this jaunt will be almost wholly of the collectors' type. The canceled stamps and markings on the face of every piece of mail will be the important thing about it. The contents will be of no interest to anybody. This is thrilling and vital for collectors. The rest of the country looks on in puzzled amusement.

With international gatherings becoming so common, the language problem becomes more difficult. Educated men in Europe usually know two or three languages. Americans seldom learn more than one. A Boston merchant, Edward A. Filene, thinks he has a solution. It is a device called the polyglot dial, which is soon to be tried out at a convention of the International Advertising Association in Berlin. Every address made from the platform will be translated, as it is delivered, into five other languages by as many interpreters. By means of wires connecting with all the seats, provided with individual dials and ear pieces, every person in the audience can either listen to the speech as delivered, or tune into whichever of the five running translations he wants. It sounds like a good idea, but expensive. Perhaps a muffler would be cheaper and, for most speakers, more acceptable to the audience.

THE KING OF ORGANS.

I talk frequently about the importance of the liver which many years ago was "considered the king of organs."

And yet research men have been able to prove that you could apparently get along all right if it were only one third as large, or if it were greatly increased in size. Nature seems able to do the work in either case.

And yet the liver does a number of jobs of which we know, and likely does others of which we have not learned.

It manufactures the bile which breaks up the fats so they can be absorbed, and makes a sort of soap that lubricates the intestine. This is why an individual whose bile flows freely from liver or gall bladder has constipation.

This bile also is able to destroy harmful organisms in the intestine. Bile is thus nature's own antiseptic, and there are none better. It is thought that bile pigment is made into bile by the liver cells.

As the food comes pouring into the liver after being absorbed into the blood by the small intestine, the liver sorts it out, allowing the proteids (meat eggs and so forth) to go on their way, but taking hold of the carbohydrates (bread, vegetables, and sugars,) and letting part go into the blood to create heat and energy. It forms glycogen or sugar from the balance, and stores it away in its cells to be used when it is needed by the system.

"It is a well established fact that the liver removes the poisons taken into the body, such as arsenic, phosphorous, chloroform, and other products of a poisonous nature which are formed by the tissues of the body as they act upon the foodstuffs brought to them by the blood."

As you know there are various tests that are now used to find out the actual ability of the liver to do its various jobs.

And if it is failing in some of them, a change of diet, exercise, or even surgery is used to help correct matters.

As I said before the way to keep the liver in good condition is to make it move some. Squeezing it by bending exercises, or by deep breathing, sending the floor of the chest against it, are the simplest and most effective measures.

Duck Champion Egg-Layer

The domestic duck, used only for food in the United States, is coming into its own as an egg-layer in the British Isles. Over there, a farm having as many as 1,000 ducks is not uncommon, reports the Farm Journal. The average duck will produce almost twice as many eggs as the average chicken. In several laying trials, ducks have laid more than 300 eggs a year, and one prodigious quacker has set a world's record with 357 eggs in 365 days.

SYNOPSIS: Prior to this narrative as a remote result of Viscount Brocklehurst, whose marked place in church her enemy Mr. Ivo is writing ship and the doctrine have been interrupted. For Titus Oldcraft has handed Brocklehurst a strange note, in which Brocklehurst's name is mentioned—a note taken from a gypsy woman seeking to deliver it to Richard now Oldcraft's prisoner. The Viscount—unaware of a cunning plot devised by Trafford—rides off in haste and into a trap.

Chapter 40

MURDER AVENGED

THEY had stopped for refreshment at a little ale-house—Master Oldcraft and his comrades, Bob and Tom, gulped their ale while their wretched prisoner drooped quiescent in his bonds; indeed so still and silent was he that Master Oldcraft sought to rouse him with dexterous flick of his horse whip.

"So—you'd try to play off your devil's tricks on Titus—hey?" And again the whip cracked but still the captive stirred not nor spoke.

"'E don't 'ear you, Titus," quoth Bob.

"The villain's a-swoon, Titus," said Tom.

"Then heave yon bucket o' water over him!" said Master Oldcraft.

A gasp ... a groan ... Sir Richard stared into the merciless, smiling visage of Titus Oldcraft.

"Sir," quoth Master Oldcraft. "You robbed me once—me, Titus! Ay, you did so—d'ye mind it, sir? You set Titus in the stocks! Ay, you did so—ye can't ha' forgot, sir? Well, sir, Titus is a-going to set your fine-gentlemanly neck in a noose, pretty soon, sir. And now, sir, if you're quite ready, we'll get a-moving."

Watched by awed landlord and one or two gaping rustics, Master Oldcraft and his fellows got to horse and trotted off, their silent prisoner jolting helpless in their midst.

Evening was near—the wooded uplands stood dark against the sunset's ruddy flame. A vivid, far-flung splendor touched all things with a strange glory: it filled the narrow, winding road, the very dust glowed pink—it burned on the tree, branch and twig.

A small, neat gentleman in black and silver stood beside the way, his arms folded and head bent like some philosopher lost in profound abstraction of thought.

"We shall be in afore the light fails us," said Mr. Oldcraft, turning to feed gloating eyes upon his prisoner.

"And with your man, too," chuckled Bob.

"Ay—When I go arter a man, I get a man. Titus don't fail."

"Lookee yonder!" quoth Tom, pointing suddenly. "Wot's to do? OO's 'im? See there!"

Now even as he spoke and pointed, the small, sober-clad gentleman paced slowly to the middle of the road and, halting there, stood with arms still folded, watching their approach.

"Out o' the road there!" cried Oldcraft imperiously.

The stranger neither moved nor spoke, but stood there, arms crossed, booted legs firm planted.

"Ride the fool down!" cried Oldcraft, and spurred his animal to faster pace and then, as suddenly, reined in again, for the small, slim gentleman, uncrossing his arms, showed two purposeful hands, each of which grasped a levelled pistol.

"Eh! what's this?" demanded Oldcraft, blanching. "We're officers o' the law . . . what d'ye want?"

"Your barkers—all of 'em!" answered the stranger, head still lowered. "Throw me your pistols—"

A moment's gaping dismay ... the stranger took a slow pace forward, eyes glaring behind those unwavering muzzles ... and then four pistols clattered into the dust.

"Now, dismount—all of ye dogs!"

"Why . . what more?" quavered Oldcraft, staring at this ominous figure with growing apprehension. "We . . . we are officers o' the . . ."

"Dismount! Down, ye dogs!"

Speechless and scrambling they alighted, all three.

"D' ye know me, Titus?"

"No ... ! But I guess you're the ... Galloping Parson ..."

"That same. And shoots to kill. Now, tell your fellow-rogues to be gone."

Staying for no more, Bob and Tom turned about and incontinent made off down the road.

"Oldcraft—look on me! I am Robin ! ... the son o' that bright saint! ... Jonathan Wild murdered ... ! him innocent, ye did, ...ce of his blood——"

"No!" cried Oldcraft, in hoarse, pleading accents.

"Eight o' ye were concerned and six o' these are dead, and 'tis now your turn, and presently—Wild..."

"Lord...," gasped Oldcraft.

"Titus, can ye pray?"

"No—no ...! But—you'd never murder me—".

"If ye can't pray, I'll pray for ye. On your knees, Titus!"

Shivering, sweating, abject in his terror, Oldcraft fell to desperate pleading, but his frantic supplications were drowned in shrill laughter as Robin Leroy smote him to his knees.

Then Oldcraft crouched, bowed his head, yet, with motion incredibly quick, snatched weapon from his breast and fired, but—like an echo to this shot came a second, and, without word or cry, Titus Oldcraft sank face downward in the dust.

Dropping his pistols, Robin Leroy slowly lifted hands and eyes to the radiant sunset.

"Lord," he murmured: "Oh, God of Justice, I beseech thee...show mercy on ... this evil rogue so lately dead, and give...I pray...kind welcome to the soul of him...now winging up to thee."

Thus stood he a long moment, hands reached yearningly aloft—then, as if racked by sudden spasm, his features grew convulsed and he crouched swiftly above the inanimate thing asprawl in the dust.

"Aha, Cain—so, there y' are?" he cried. "Ye'll shame and hang no more o' the guilty or innocent, ye dog! But Cain was marked i' the brow—soho, come let's set Cain's mark on ye!" With fumbling hand he drew forth a pen-knife, opened it and, stooping lower, turned up that dead face...

Robin Leroy arose, coughed suddenly and pressed a handkerchief to his mouth; then, walking to Sir Richard, cut him free of those cruel, galling bonds that bound him to the saddle.

Sir Richard slipped to earth, staggered and, sitting down, began to rub and chafe at his numbed limbs, staring the while into the eyes that stared back at him...

"My horse ... yonder——" The words ended in another fit of coughing. So Sir Richard, having found the horse tethered amid the thickets hard by, led it into the road and lifted the wounded man into the saddle, who fumbled in his breast and drew thence a small, silver-mounted pistol.

"Little Joseph!" he whispered. "Take it, friend, I don't need it. I shall never ... die ... in a noose!"

Smiling still, the stricken man nodded, coughed, and, gathering the reins in failing grasp, ambled away towards the splendour of the sunset; and Sir Richard, gazing after him, knew that, come what might, the Galloping Parson would indeed never die by rope and gallows.

Sir Richard free but stolen is still the Viscount's prisoner. Continue the story in tomorrow's chapter.

WESTERN UNION SERVICE AT WEST SHORE STATION

The self service booth of the Western Union Telegraph Company at the West Shore station is not yet completed and until the booth is completed there will be an operator at the station to receive and transmit messages. This service at the West Shore station which has been maintained each summer for the convenience of the traveling public will be made a permanent year around service beginning this fall when the self service booth is installed. At the present time the hours at the West Shore station are from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., during which time an operator is in attendance. However when the booth is in service later in the season there will be service through the self service booth during the same hours that the main office on John street is open from 7:30 a. m. to midnight on week days and from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Sundays. Manager Fraser of the local office has recently caused the office hours to be extended for the convenience of the public.

Carload of New Franklin Cars

Arrived Here Thursday and Are On Exhibition at Broadway Garage—Will Be Sold By Longendyke and Martin, Inc.

Longendyke and Martin, Inc., of 716 Broadway have taken over the Ulster county distribution of the air cooled Franklin automobile line. The Franklin line will be handled by Messrs. Longendyke and Martin in addition to the Marmon and Roosevelt line which they have been handling for some time.

A carload of the new Franklin models was received Thursday and are now on exhibition in the showrooms in the Broadway Garage. Included in the cars received were some of the new snappy color jobs which are being put out this year by Franklin.

Mr. Longendyke, who for 14 years was local distributor of the Chandler line under J. B. Hulett of New York city who held the distribution franchise for this portion of the state, has taken on the Franklin not only because of the reputation of the Franklin line but because Mr. Hulett has taken over the New York distributies of Franklin and desired Longendyke & Martin, Inc., to go along with him as Ulster county agents. During his 14 years associated with Mr. Hulett Mr. Longendyke gained an enviable reputation in the automobile business and in view of this past record Mr. Hulett endeavored to secure the firm of Longendyke & Martin, Inc., as the local agents under his Franklin franchise.

Good Book Immortal

Such is the immortality of a good book, defying man and nature alike and linking one generation of men and books with another. Styles and tastes may change, puritanism may give place to sophistication, "wisecracking" to serious thought, but a good book goes on forever, finding its attics its shelves, its place in the world, its knowing minds, its appreciative hearts, its tender hands.—Washington Star.

Probably Egyptian

Geometry and algebra probably originated in Egypt. It is said that geometry was invented because of the need of surveying lands inundated by the Nile floods. The oldest manuscript treating of algebra is that of Ahmes, an Egyptian, who about 1700 B. C. copied a treatise dating probably from 2000 B. C.

Mrs. D. McConvey is visiting her daughter in Oneonta.

Circus day is drawing near and the elephants are supposed to walk the streets while the howling lions and big game will remain in their cages. If all materializes that is on the advertising poster the McGrath meadow will be swallowed up.

Miss Minnie Simpson is clerking in the Simpson store.

Washington's Cherry Trees

Mrs. Taft shortly after going into the White House ordered 80 Japanese cherry trees to be sent to Washington and planted. She had seen and admired these trees while traveling in the East. A Japanese resident of New York made her a gift of 2,000 of these trees. When they reached America they contained an insect that was injurious to American plants. For that reason they were thrown overboard. The city of Tokio then gave the United States 3,000 of these trees. The water side around the Speedway and the Tidal basin in Washington have these trees in blossom during the early spring.

"IF TH' RITZY JANES CAN DO IT, I GUESS I CAN!"

Last British Invasion; French Practical Jokes?

The last invasion of England by an armed enemy force was on February 28, 1797, when a French army of 1,400 men, under General Tate, landed at Fishguard with an idea apparently of conquering Wales. The whole affair proved farcical. Lord Cawdor hastily gathered together the local militia, and hundreds of women, dressed in the national costume, red mantles and beaver hats, accompanied their men folk, whereupon the invaders concluding that large reinforcements had reached Fishguard, hastened to make unconditional surrender. Tate was an American, many of his officers were Irish, and more than half his men were convicts released to help to equip the expedition. There were not wanting cynics, who declared that the French government had planned the whole affair with the sole idea of getting 1,400 incorrigible ruffians boarded and lodged at the expense of the British.

Great Forests on Pacific

Nowhere in the world are there such magnificent forests as those found along the immediate coast north of San Francisco, says the American Tree association. West of the Cascade and coast ranges the mild climate, heavy rainfall and generally humid atmospheric conditions have resulted in the production of a forest that is more wonderful in the density of its growth and the majesty of its development than is to be found anywhere else. The sequoias of California are the giants of the vegetable kingdom. The Douglas firs, Sitka spruces and the giant arbor vitae (western red cedars) of Oregon and Washington are second in size only to the sequoias.

Seagulls from the Great Salt Lake have destroyed approximately 40 per cent of Utah's cherry crop, a survey shows.

Why We Do What We Do

by W. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE TALK TO OURSELVES

PEOPLE who live alone for a long time begin to talk to themselves. I recall an experience some years ago while en route to California. In passing through Arizona a man boarded the train at one of the flag stops. He looked like a hermit. In talking with him I found that he had lived by himself for years. His lips were moving most of the time as he sat in the seat ahead of me. Every now and then he would talk aloud to himself.

A lonely person talks to himself for the same reason that a boy whistles in the dark. It is an unconscious effort to provide themselves with company, which shows how strongly we are dominated by the herding impulse.

Any of us are likely to talk to ourselves when rehearsing some past experience in which we are thinking up arguments in defense or justification. We become so stirred up and earnest that we talk out loud before we realize what we are doing. The same may happen if we get too deeply absorbed in our day dreams and reveries.

Children often carry on conversations with imaginary playmates. This is more likely to happen in a child who is alone a good deal. All children talk to their toys. Perhaps in some cases this childish habit carries over into adult life, and a person keeps on talking to himself.

We talk to ourselves in childhood to provide imaginary playmates, in adult life to provide company when we have to be alone a good deal, and in vivid day dreams and soliloquies in which the situation amounts to that of having other people present.

FOR THE GOOSE—

ANYTHING you don't like about your life might be improved by marriage, except your relatives.

Forty per cent is all you ever know of any other woman's real inside mind and most of the time that's too much.

Any woman can be trusted to take better care of anybody else's health than her own.

It's easier for a good woman to believe her next door neighbor ain't on the square than for a bad woman to believe her's is.

FOR THE GANDER—

Beauty can't create imagination where it don't exist. But imagination can create beauty anywhere.

Stupid men is responsible for the idea that temperamental women don't make the most satisfactory wives.

The secret of a successful dinner party is good food for the men and good partners for the women.

Brass in Industry

The manufacture of brass was given considerable impetus during the Fifteenth century in Belgium, at Goslar, in the Harz, and in Bochum, Silesia. Later, in the Sixteenth century, it became an industry of Surrey, England. It remained for the decade of 1740, however, to exhibit all the pure metallic alloy on a commercial scale. Prior to that the manufacture of brass was accomplished with the use of the calamine ore.

As they sometimes will,
And the hours seem long
As you climb the hill;
Remember, my friend,
'Tis a part you play
You'll find in the end

TO HAVE FOR LUNCHEON

A COOL drink on a hot day is a most acceptable refreshment. Serve all sorts of cold drinks with the luncheon instead of tea or coffee, for variety.

Iced buttermilk is both wholesome, refreshing and nourishing and when it can be obtained fresh and sweet it is a drink which is highly prized.

Pineapple Cup.

Put into a bowl the juice of three lemons, two oranges sliced and seeded, one grated pineapple and one cupful of sugar. Let stand an hour to extract the juice, then strain through a fruit press. Add to the juice as much cold water as desired, and two slices of pineapple shredded. Pour into glasses half full of cracked ice.

Pineapple Lemonade.

Take one cupful each of sugar and canned pineapple, one cupful of water and the juice of two lemons. Boil the sugar and water until it threads. Put the pineapple through the fruit press and add to the sirup the juice of the lemons. When ready to serve add water and sugar to taste. Serve chilled.

Blackberry or Raspberry Shrub.

For every cupful of the juice of the berries take one-half cupful of cider vinegar and two cupfuls of sugar. Put the fruit, sugar and vinegar over the fire, stir until the sugar dissolves and boil until thick; skim if necessary and bottle. When serving allow one-fourth cupful of the sirup to half or three-fourths of a glass of iced water.

Tea Punch.

Pour a quart of boiling water over a tablespoonful of tea. Have the peelings and juice of three lemons and one orange in a pitcher. After the tea has steeped five minutes pour it over the fruit. Add a cupful of sugar and cool. Serve with ice in tall glasses.

Mint Sangaree.

Crush two or three sprays of mint with a lump of sugar. Drop into a glass half full of cracked ice. Add four tablespoonfuls of grape juice and fill the glass to the brim with charged water. Shake and strain into another glass and serve at once.

Babe Ruth

knocks out that knock

WITH

ZERO KNOCK RATING GASOLINE

"There are lots of noises I like. I'd be dumb if I didn't like to hear the fans shouting. I like the crack of the ball when it connects with the bat. I like the sizzle of a steak in a frying-pan. But the one noise I don't like is the knock in my motor. That drives me wild. Not only does it take all the pleasure out of motoring, but it costs a fortune in repair bills. Since I've been using the new TYDOL ETHYL I haven't heard a single knock."

Babe Ruth

The Babe knocks the well-known pill out to the far corner of the lot, and the fans go wild.

But when the Babe's motor starts this knocking business, then the Babe goes wild.

But not for long . . . because he knocked out that knock in his motor with more ease than he knocks out a homer on the diamond . . . knocked it out to the far corners of nowhere . . . with TYDOL ETHYL. This super-fuel is a combination of Hi-test TYDOL with its power, liveliness, instant starting, and ETHYL, with its anti-knock feature. All the dash of one . . . all the quiet of the other . . . together. And its knock rating is ZERO! Absolute ZERO!

Stop at the nearest TYDOL ETHYL pump, and stop these destructive, dangerous motor knocks—instantly. TYDOL ETHYL in the tank means money in your pocket. It costs but 3c more per gallon, and saves your car from the pound, pound, pound of the sledge-hammer knocks in the cylinders.

Knock out the knocks before they knock out the motor.

KNOCK RATING OF 6 PROMINENT PREMIUM GASOLINES

These 3 cent premium gasolines were tested on the Midgley (Bouncing Pin) Indicator according to an established standard scale over a period of 6 months, from Nov., 1928, to May, 1929, with the following results:

	MINIMUM KNOCK RATING	MAXIMUM KNOCK RATING	AVERAGE KNOCK RATING
Fuel A	6	10	9
Fuel B	5	13	8
Fuel C	0	5	2½
Fuel D	3	7	6½
Fuel E	3	5	4½

Make a Ten-Gallon Test

Even if it were a gamble you wouldn't be taking much of a chance . . . when only 30c is at stake. But it's an absolute "sure thing," a "set-up"—that TYDOL ETHYL will stop the knocks. Pay 3c more a gallon and make this ten-gallon test and find out the answer for yourself.

YOUR TYDOL DEALER NOW OFFERS YOU:-

1. The same Hi-test TYDOL (green) . . . Hi-test TYDOL will continue to be the leader of non-premium gasolines—unchanged in quality or price.
2. The new TYDOL ETHYL (red) . . . a de luxe, super fuel with a zero knock rating, at only 3c more a gallon.
3. VEEDOL Motor Oil . . . Made 100% from Pennsylvania and other paraffine base crudes . . . the choice of famous aviators.

Rediscount Rate Up to 6 Per Cent

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Increase from 5 to 6 per cent in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and reduction of the buying rate for bankers' bills from five and one-fourth per cent to five and one-eighth was interpreted in financial circles today as an effort of the Federal Reserve Board to curb the flow of credit into speculative loans and insure funds to finance crop movement and industrial credit demands.

A statement regarding brokers' loans issued by the board showed that an increase in the past week of $158,000,000 had brought the total to $4,827,000,000.

The rapid increase in brokers' loans in the face of two warnings from the board, one last February and another early in the summer was held responsible by financial operators for the increased rate—the highest since the post-war reconstruction period.

Roy A. Young, Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, issued a statement in connection with the increase in which he said:

"The Federal Reserve Board and the Governors of the Federal Reserve Banks have been in conference for five days and have considered how the resources of the Federal Reserve system might best be conserved and made available to meet autumn requirements."

"The reduction in the buying rate for bankers' bills is expected to stimulate the market for bills and to increase credit facilities available to farming districts and industry.

Erects 3-Room House at Cost of Only $50

Holland, Mich.—Rather than become an object of charity when his home burned, Fred Bolema has become probably the smallest taxpayer in the city of Holland. That is for a person owning his own home.

He built his house for $50.

Lumber was secured from salvage of a demolished factory at a cost of $20 per 1,000 feet. The house consists of three rooms—a kitchen, 6x8 feet; living room, 8x8 feet; and a bedroom, 8x8 feet. In each of the rooms is a window [illegible] foot square. The roof [illegible] there is no siding on the [illegible] no plaster on the inside walls [illegible] cement.

The furniture is the plainest and Bolema does all of his own cooking. He raises vegetables in a garden that almost surrounds the house. He works at odd jobs and devotes the rest of his time to tinkering and gardening.

Special Editions Printed to Hide News of Death

Yonkers, N. Y.—Because the news of the death of Albert C. Odell, construction superintendent of the New York Telephone company, might prove fatal to his daughter, who was a patient in Yonkers General hospital, the Yonkers Herald recently published an edition especially for the daughter, omitting the obituary of Mr. Odell.

Plans were made to send the special copy of the Herald to the hospital, where Mrs. Hazel Grady, the daughter, and a regular reader of the paper, might read it without learning of the death. When the special copy was run off, it was discovered two fraternal organizations had inserted paid notices referring to the death.

Again the edition was remade and the notices taken out. Mrs. Grady did not learn of her father's death until several days later, when her condition had improved.

1930 Models by Chrysler Here

Will Be Placed on Exhibition at Showrooms of Every Sales and Service in the Central Garage Building.

The new 1930 models of Chrysler have been received in Kingston and will be placed on exhibition at the showrooms of Every Sales and Service in the Central Garage building at Broadway and St. James street. Mr. Every was one of the many who gathered in the auditorium of Port Ewen, where he built up a large business through the Central Garage property in this city from Orrin M. Kennedy and took over the local Chrysler distribution.

Mr. Every has passed the entire management of the business with which he started in the automobile line and given up the Ford agency which he held for many years. Mr. Kennedy will continue the radio business from offices on the second floor of the Central Garage building.

The new Chrysler line which has been substantially reduced in price for 1930, includes the same three price range jobs as last year with many mechanical improvements and body changes. Startling mechanical changes for the improvement of performance, economy and comfort have been introduced by Chrysler for 1930 and Mr. Every invites the public to come in and inspect his new quarters and look over the new Chrysler line. Several models are on the floor for inspection and additional models are enroute.

Express Agent Flops as a Terrier Chaser

Harbor Springs, Mich.—A dog was shipped by a veterinary to its owner, Mrs. B. S. Woods, Harbor Springs. It was a clever Irish terrier and pet of the family. The crate arrived marked with Mrs. Woods' own tag. It was her crate but the dog was a stranger who showed fight. He was an airedale and tough.

Investigation developed that the terrier, tiring of the confinement, escaped from the crate at Fort Wayne. The express agent chased him four blocks. In the chase the agent spied the airedale, grabbed him and shipped him to Harbor Springs.

Classified Ads Used to Promote Fraudulent Home Work Schemes

OFFERED $50 A DAY PROFIT DISPOSING OF SECOND HAND MERCHANDISE

Worn, torn, and dirty second-hand merchandise may have, in some instances, re-sale value. It remained, however, for an enterprising schemer to discover that this re-sale value could be enormously increased with the aid of classified ads. By representing that $50 a day could be made in selling this merchandise, he found that large quantities of old goods could be disposed of at good prices. And that is how it happens that in the "Help Wanted" columns readers frequently find offers of "opportunities to take up bankrupt, rummage, and bargain sales."

That these offers are anything but "opportunities" is well illustrated by an investigation conducted by the Post Office Department into the activities of E. C. Bollyn of Chicago, who was engaged in enterprises of this nature. As a result all future mail addressed to his companies was ordered returned to the original senders with the words "Fraudulent: Mail to this address returned by order of Postmaster General" stamped in the envelope or wrapper. Those words speak for themselves. Bollyn was receiving about 223 pieces of mail daily when the fraud order was issued.

E. C. Bollyn operated three firms in Chicago known as Chicago Auction Jobbers, United Auction Jobbers, and Salvage Sale Headquarters. The object of these concerns was to sell various assortments of alleged merchandise through the mails upon representations to the effect that such assortments constitute the "Greatest Bargain on Earth," and that purchasers may readily earn large sums of money by re-selling them.

Contact with prospects was made by means of classified advertisements and all those who asked for particulars were sent promotional literature which contained, among others, the following titles: "Greatest Bargains on Earth," "Open a Business of Your Own," "Make $50 Profit Daily," "No Experience Required," "No Dull Season," "Our Guarantee—Unsold Goods Returnable," "Make Big Money the Whole Year Round," "Money Making Secrets Exposed," and "Would a Business of Your Own Interest You?"

Although throughout all the literature constant reference is made to the high quality of the merchandise, the Postal Inspector assigned to the case found it to be, for the most part, practically worthless. It was soiled, torn and not only unsaleable but unwearable as well. Its condition was such, according to the Inspector, as possibly to endanger the health of persons touching it.

Rugs represented as having been "thoroughly cleaned" were extremely dirty. Overcoats alleged to have been "cleaned and pressed" and "not in need of repairs" were soiled, unpressed and torn. Shoes represented as "good as new" had large holes in the soles, broken uppers, and were soiled with wear.

In many instances a miscellaneous assortment of worthless junk in no way resembling the articles ordered was sent to remitters. Bollyn admitted to the Inspector that a great deal of merchandise sold by him was obtained from the Chicago "Ghetto" which is a district of extreme squalor and filth.

Persons complaining to Bollyn regarding the character of the goods, the Inspector found, were invariably sent a form letter expressing surprise at their dissatisfaction and advising them to order "No. 1 goods" in the future. In view of the fact that in many instances "No. 1 goods" had already been ordered his bad faith was manifest.

The Post Office Inspector reported that complaints to Bollyn uniformly described his goods as worthless. These complaints were received from all sections of the country.

Persons seeking employment and who consult the classified columns for possible contacts should be on their guard against schemes of this nature. There are a number of so-called home work schemes which take comparatively small amounts of money from prospective workers. Such a scheme as this, however, might take a good part of a person's savings by stimulating the belief that he is making an investment in a business of his own. Bollyn featured a "No Profit Sample Outfit" at $25 which appears to be about the minimum investment required under his scheme.

Other large scale schemers who use classified advertising are the "Clipping Bureau" schemers, the "Foreign Employment" promoter, the fake "Agent" promoter, "Circular Mailing" schemers, "Card Gilding" tricksters, "Pattern" schemers, and "Envelope Addressing" promoters. The details of these and other similar frauds are discussed in other articles of this series.

To aid newspapers in protecting their readers from fraudulent advertisements, the National Better Business Bureau, New York, N. Y., maintains a special section to investigate classified advertising. The Bureau not only reports on individual schemers, but supplies newspapers with basic facts about typical schemes and makes it possible for responsible publications to censor fraudulent advertising.

Simmons Pleased Large Audience

On Tuesday evening a large audience gathered at the concert given by the Woodstock Ensemble at the Woodstock Playhouse for a program of violin duets, and featuring a guest singer, William Simmons, concert baritone and teacher of singing from New York city.

Mr. Simmons, who is teaching in Woodstock through August and September, is known to concert and radio audiences in Kingston, Woodstock, and many other places. His appearance was cause for a full house at the Woodstock Country Club's little theatre in Woodstock village.

Tuesday night's program opened with selections from Bach given by Gladys Billings and Gerald Kunz on violins and Charles King on the piano. This was the first appearance of Mrs. Billings on the platform of the Playhouse; this trio played difficult passages with skill and feeling; they were roundly applauded.

William Simmons broke into his part of the program with "Lungi Dal Caro Bene," by Secchi, held his audience from the start by his vigorous baritone voice, his frank, open style, and especially the powerful range of his voice. In the lower bass range, he delighted the audience by his power and ease of phrasing.

His second numbers were from Handel, which were encored for full five minutes until he responded with an extra selection of lighter intent. The second half of the program included six charming duets for the violins by Godard, and five numbers by Mr. Simmons.

MEDAL AWARDED EAST DURHAM COW FOR HIGH PRODUCTION

East Durham, N. Y., Aug. 9.—White Heart's Rustic Jewel, pure-bred Jersey cow owned by C. H. Jennings of East Durham, has just been awarded an American Jersey Cattle Club Silver Medal for her creditable production record in a recently completed official test. Started on this test at the age of three years and two months, White Heart's Rustic Jewel produced 9,613.4 pounds of milk in the succeeding 305 days. This yield is equivalent to 625 pounds of butter and 4,464 quarts of milk. Mr. Jennings owns an excellent herd of pure-bred Jerseys and has been doing production testing for some time.

New York Central Railroad Employe Has High Praise for Nu-Erb

Tells How It Ended Serious Health Troubles Resulting From Active Service During World War.

"During the World War I was overseas and being unable to take the proper care of myself at that time I fell a victim to stomach disorders, kidney troubles and chronic constipation," said Mr. Charles Johnston, 526 Fourth street, Niagara Fals, N. Y., in a recent statement to the Nu-Erb man.

"My food formed a gas soon after it reached my stomach, causing bloating and shortness of breath. I had a continual pain across my back and my kidneys were very weak. I would get frequent headaches, dizzy spells, floating spots before my eyes and was extremely nervous. I became a chronic victim of constipation and my bowels would not move even when I used harsh laxatives.

"I tried every medicine that I ever heard of for these troubles, but could not get any permanent relief. Nu-Erb has done more for me in a short time than anything I have ever had in those 10 years of suffering with these troubles. Since taking this medicine the gas and other distress in my stomach has been relieved. My nerves are steady for the first time. The dark spots, dizzy spells, headaches and that tired worn-out feeling has disappeared. I have a fine appetite now, sleep well at night and my bowels move regularly without the aid of additional cathartics. I am very grateful to have found a medicine for Nu-Erb and gladly recommend it to others especially those who had their health affected as I did during active service."

Let this amazing Nu-Erb help you back to health and strength. Its pure herbal juices tone and regulate the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels until they do their work as nature intends. It drives accumulations of waste matter from the system, which is so often the cause of rheumatism and neuritis.

MR. CHARLES JOHNSTON.

McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall Street is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

Mid-summer Finds the Trimmed Neckline Established.

New York—The collarless dress is gone and all but forgotten. Even evening dresses have their necklines trimmed in some way, or draped at least. The theory that costume jewelry was a mere substitute for a trimmed neckline is about to be put to the test now that necklines are trimmed, and never has there been a more fascinating array of necklaces to tempt the shoppers from our presses.

Obviously all trimming details are not centered on the neckline. Lace already covers all the bordered jackets and of formal afternoon dresses with a bow of velvet at the shoulder. The fur bow was bound to appear in the wake of so many other furs, and that bows remain in vogue seems as much of a certainty as anything can be so far in advance of the season.

(Copyright, 1929, by Fairchild.)

Charming versions of the bertha are being shown not only as a part of the dress itself but in separate collars of the lingerie type. The flattering quality of a bit of lingerie at the throat is generally conceded and early fall collections introduce lace, pleated georgette or net and such things to relieve the sombreness of a black gown, be it velvet or crepe. That this touch is as often off-white instead of white is easy to understand when one remembers the importance of all shades of brown in the fall color range. Brown is usually accompanied by egg shell, or biscuit tones. As fashions for fall become less remote one is struck with the respect accorded all shades of purple and violet.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pleasing Frock.

6078. Satin and printed crepe, metal cloth and satin or velvet may be effectively combined in this style. The long waist portions are joined to flare skirt sections cut on diagonal lines. Soft fulness is featured at the shoulders. The sleeve, a one piece fitted model, may be omitted. This is a simple youthful model, lovely for the new rayon and celanese fabrics and attractive in the new silks.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 1½ yard of plain material 39 inches wide if made with sleeves. Without sleeves ⅝ yard less is required of the figured material. The width of the dress at the lower edge is 2¾ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Milady's Apparel Reveals Her Age

Dresses Should Fit Personality as Well as Hips and Waist.

It isn't the number of candles lighted on your birthday cake but the dress you wear to the party which really tells "how old." Dresses fitted to the personality as well as hips and waist will keep friends permanently guessing as to your actual age in years says Jane Warren Wells in Farm and Fireside.

When age is a consideration we can never buy with abandon.

First of all, we must choose the new fashions that we know will be both becoming and flattering. Always we must have in mind what fabrics, color and silhouette and especially which neck, sleeve and hemlines will be most becoming to our posture, size, type, age and personality.

For example, the sleeveless, backless frocks, so popular with young people today, will be definitely avoided by the woman who has arms too large or too thin to be attractive. Such types are sure to find real comfort in the little jackets made of the same fabric as the dress. These are becoming and conceal so beautifully any imperfections.

Slender mature women will take delight in the fashionable berthas that adorn shoulders and provide a soft, graceful line. Thin chests will find lacy, soft jabots a veritable boon and the surplice front closing proves a friend both to the thin and stout, as it makes the front line less severe and gives interest to an otherwise simple dress.

Every woman past forty should see that she has sufficient skirt fullness so that she can sit down gracefully. The dress shown has that essential.

Irregular hemlines allow a happy compromise in skirt lengths and should be taken advantage of by older women. They are especially becoming for women with good taste in shoes and who buy with discrimination stockings of the right color and who take pride in seeing that there are no wrinkles.

When you are not so light on your feet as you once were, or where comfort is the first requirement in shoes, watch your stockings so that they harmonize rather than contrast with your dress. Stockings should be a shade lighter but never so light in comparison with the dress as to be conspicuous.

When face lines begin to appear, satins and other shiny or hard surfaced fabrics are to be avoided. They draw a contrast that makes the face and hands appear more wrinkled than they are. The same is true of metallic cloths, moire, taffeta and such bright surfaces.

Crepes and chiffons have become staples. They are manufactured in such a variety and such exquisite, subtle colorings that one can find exactly the right tint, tone and texture for any purpose. Flat crepe is the volume dress fabric for all ages and is especially appropriate for older years. It has the advantage, too, of being comparatively inexpensive.

One thing that every woman past thirty, and who is even slightly above or below average in size or weight, should avoid is sleazy, cheap-appearing fabrics, either in texture or color. It is far better to have one good dress than two cheap ones. Cheapness in fabric seems to show more clearly than in other merchandise, and it draws a sharp contrast where dignity in dress is essential.

Molded Silhouette for Day, Evening Clothes

If you have wondered whether the molded silhouette would take as strong a hold on daytime clothes as those of evening you will find that it is coming into prominence in the afternoon mode. An ensemble of taffeta seen recently sponsors quarter-inch tucks running from the shoulder to nine inches above the hem in both coat and frock. These, being vertical, give a close fitting effect that is very striking.

Tea First Artificial Drink

Man's first artificially concocted drink, so far as the records can be traced, was tea. Tea leaves were being used to make a beverage in the orient more than 4,700 years ago, reports the Farm Journal.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are ideal for summer lunches, suppers or breakfasts. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Children delight in their crispness and flavor. It's a splendid way to get them to take more milk.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes have that original "wonder" flavor no one has ever duplicated. Always extra crisp.

Just look for the red-and-green package. At all grocers. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

FEDERAL COURT RULES ON MISLEADING LABELS

A far reaching decision on the labeling of medicinal preparations has been handed down by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, say the officials of the Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to the decision of the Court of Appeals, the use on labels of medicinal preparations of language which, when read literally, is not a statement of curative or therapeutic properties, but, owing to attendant circumstances, may be understood as such, brings these labels within the scope of the Federal food and drugs act just as definitely as if direct statements appeared.

MOTORIST . . mind that thee gets Quaker State Motor Oil for thy motor, for this reason: Quaker State is a specially refined oil—which means that from every gallon there is removed a quart of waste material found in ordinary oil. Mrs. Willis (sternly to husband arriving home at 3 a. m.)—What does the clock say?

Closet—A place in which a girl keeps most of her clothes when she's dressed up.

The flapper had evaded his persistent proposals of marriage with soft words intended to allay the hurt of her definite and inevitable refusal. Exasperated, he turned upon her:

"In plain English will you marry me, or no?"

"Hell, no!" she replied.

Added to equal rights a lot of women seem to want unusual privileges.

He couldn't find his comb but she brushed his manly locks with an osculation.

Up to the time of going to press war and argument had never settled a single dispute.

"I'm a self-made man, that's what I am—a self made man," he said.

"You knocked off work too soon," came a voice from the corner.

The more luxurious the home, the less time is spent there.

How much does a girl's clothes weigh? A pretty Kingston girl says a pound or so. But she included a fur coat....If you don't think a girl can get interested in her work, watch her chew gum....Many a man who is scared stiff to take a lodge initiation will walk into a marriage without a fear. But a married man yelps as loud as any....An adding and calculating machine company boasts of 5,000 calculations an hour. Most any woman can beat that.... Folks are too positive. They don't believe half the things they think they do. Take, for instance, a bachelor and the dozen girls or more who occupied his thought and time for a period of years; each one in whom, for him, the sun rose and set; without which death was preferable to him, to whom he swore eternal faith. Well, now the girls are either married or no longer speak to him.

Newsboy: "Extra! Extra! All about the operation on the mayor!

Customer: "Here, boy, I don't see anything about an operation in this paper!"

Newsboy: "There it is, see for yourself. Mayor's fete comes off tomorrow."

He—Look at me again, will you?

She—No; because if I do you'll kiss me.

He—Honestly, I won't.

She—Then what's the use looking at you?"

The old complaint of women that they "have nothing to wear" is rather justified these days.

Moisture in the Home

The assertion was made that our homes would be much more comfortable in winter were the interior not so dry. Thermal engineers have asserted that on a zero day as much as a bathtub full of water, or from 12 to 20 gallons, should be evaporated in a home to keep it at the comfort point.

Not Contagious Diseases

Dr. Ray M. Balyeat, authority on the subject, says: "Emphatically neither hay fever nor asthma is contagious. Unless an individual has been born with the ability to become sensitive, it is practically impossible for that individual to become sensitive to any protein."

WATER SUPPLY VITAL PROBLEM

Cities Turn to Various Sources for This All-Important Fluid.

Washington.—The plight of Hongkong, where a drought has made it necessary to import emergency supplies of water by the shipload for a community of more than half a million people, emphasizes the dependence of cities on an abundance of water. A bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society tells of the various sources of water supply to which cities have turned and traces the development of the modern city waterworks.

"So long as men live in villages the problem of a supply of water for drinking, and other household purposes usually can be solved easily," says the bulletin. "But when the village grows into a town, and the town into a city, the furnishing of an adequate amount of water becomes increasingly difficult. The history of the growth of great cities in all parts of the world has in large part been the history of the reaching out farther and farther for a greater supply of this all-important fluid.

Is Age-Old Problem.

"It is not a modern problem. Six thousand years ago the cities that grew up in the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates and the Nile were faced with the same need for a dependable water supply. In fact they grew where they did because water was there easily available. Because they were situated on level valley lands, these earliest cities of which we know could bring in water in canals; and from these the populace dipped it as they needed it.

"Phoenicians were probably the first to construct what may be called waterworks. They sank a series of shafts and connected the bottoms by tunnels, thus leading a stream of water underground from upland sources to their coastal cities. Impervious strata were chosen in which to dig the tunnels, and in this way loss by seepage and evaporation was avoided. Such underground water systems are still made use of in the Near East, notably in Persia where all the larger cities obtain their water from such hidden streams.

"The early Greeks borrowed the shaft-tunnel system from Syria, and conducted water to a number of their cities in this way as well as by surface canals.

"Most of these earliest city water systems were for the purpose of furnishing a necessity—the water which was essential for drinking and cooking and cleaning. There were public baths in Greek cities; but apparently it was not until Rome had grown into a great city with a marked concentration of population that the idea came to supply to such a big population center a superabundance of water—not only enough to meet the urgent necessities of the populace, but also a large surplus to increase their comfort and pleasure. Some of the greatest engineering accomplishments of the Romans were in the construction of their aqueducts. The ruins of a number of these great works, stalking across valleys and lowlands near Rome on arches from 50 to 100 or more feet high, are among the most striking remains of the ancient Roman civilization.

Rome Went 60 Miles for Water.

"The earliest of the Roman aqueducts had its source of water supply less than seven miles from the city. But as the population grew, and more and more water was required, new aqueducts were built extending 11, 20, 40 and even 61 miles into the country. A popular idea that these aqueduct channels were all carried far above ground is incorrect. Long sections of most of the channels were underground and in some cases high hills were pierced for them by long, deep tunnels.

"Although Rome surpassed all earlier great cities in the abundance of her water supply, it did not go far beyond them in the matter of distribution. For the most part the water for household use was led to fountains and reservoirs from which it was necessary for the people or their servants to take it in jars. Supplies were also conducted to important public buildings, to the private homes of a few very wealthy families, and to the public baths.

"The dwellers in the cities of medieval Europe, like those of many cities of the Near and Far East today, had water supplies far inferior to that of the Romans. Some of the outstanding exceptions were cities established as Roman colonies, in which the Roman-built aqueducts continued to function. The typical medieval city depended on wells and on cisterns filled by rain water drained from roofs. The water was often unclean and easily became contaminated. These polluted city water supplies played an important part in the occurrence of the devastating plagues that swept over European cities during the Middle Ages.

"London began piping water into the city from outside sources as early as 1236, but it was supplied only to fountains and reservoirs. Few connections to individual homes were made before the Eighteenth century; and it was not until well into the Nineteenth century that this ultimate step in city water distribution took water into the dwellings of a large percentage of the city's population. Until cast iron and wrought iron pipe could be made cheaply and in great quantities the piping of water into large numbers of individual homes was out of the question. The earliest London water mains were of lead and wood. Most of the present London water supply is taken from the Thames not many miles above the city.

Uses Billion Gallons a Day.

"New York, situated on a relatively small island, has had greater difficulty than London in obtaining an adequate water supply. Until 1842 the city depended on local wells and springs. If Manhattan's present supply came from the island's rainfall, a cloud bank more than 25 miles deep would have to discharge its water burden daily. In the forties the Croton aqueduct was constructed bringing what was then an abundant quantity of water from a distance of 25 miles or more north of the city. Since that time the city has found it necessary to reach farther and farther to the north to tap additional sources. Early in the Twentieth century a great artificial subterranean river was constructed to flow for nearly 100 miles from the Catskill mountains, under the Hudson river, and beneath the city, finally to bubble up into its network of distributing pipes. New York's combined water supply now constitutes the greatest city water system in the world. It furnishes to the inhabitants of greater New York an average of nearly nine hundred million gallons a day.

"Chicago obtains its water supply simply and economically. Tunnels have been extended under the bed of Lake Michigan for only three or four miles from shore, and through these great streams of lake water are pumped into the city. Similar systems supply Milwaukee, Cleveland, and Buffalo. St. Louis and New Orleans get their water supplies from the Mississippi river; and because of the great amounts of mud carried in suspension, must make use of systems of settling tanks and must also treat the water chemically.

"Los Angeles has had to reach out farther for its water than any other American city. It transports the greater part of its supply in a huge conduit for more than 250 miles, much of the distance across deserts. For the additional supply which the city will soon need it plans to reach even farther—300 miles east to the Colorado river.

"The world's record for distance over which a large volume of water is piped for community use is held in western Australia by the three desert-surrounded, gold-mining towns: Kalgoorlie, Coolgardie, and Boulder. Five million gallons of water a day are pumped to these communities through 351 miles of pipe 33 inches in diameter.

"Wells still play their part in furnishing water to large cities; but they are not the crude, shallow pits of the Middle ages. Instead, they are shafts drilled to a depth of hundreds or perhaps a thousand or more feet; and from them, electric pumps lift millions of gallons of pure water daily. El Paso, Texas, a city of more than 117,000 population, and numerous smaller cities of the American West, as well as Memphis, Tennessee, and other cities near the Atlantic seaboard, obtain in this way an abundant water supply.

"Other island cities besides Hongkong are dependent on local rainfall to furnish their water. St. Thomas, in the Virgin islands, has constructed a brick paved watershed near the town to aid in the collection of clean water. A similar concrete-covered watershed occupies a prominent slope of the Rock of Gibraltar. In Key West rainwater, drained from roofs into cisterns, makes up the main supply. As the city has grown, however, it has been necessary to ship in water by rail in tank cars from the mainland.

"In a few arid coastal regions, the fresh water that can be collected from all sources is inadequate to meet the needs of the population, and in order to supplement the supply for towns it is necessary to distill sea water. Jidda, on the Red sea, is a typical sun-baked town where drinking water is thus wrung from the sea. The condensing factory is one of the landmarks of the Jidda harbor."

The light in the lighthouse at Jupiter Inlet, Fla., has 1,500,000 candle power.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Federal Reserve's latest thrust at securities speculation—an increase from 5 to 6 per cent in the New York bank rate—brought about one of the sharpest reactions today in the history of the New York Stock Exchange. Prices of leading stocks broke 5 to nearly 30 points in the public's mad scramble to get out of the market, with indications that the day's sales would run around 7,000,000 shares.

The increase in the rate, which coincided with a gain of $60,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans to a new high record above $6,000,000, caught Wall Street completely by surprise.

While the recent action of the market, with spectacular advances in many of the public utility and high-priced industrial stocks, had drawn warnings from conservative bankers and commission houses, few traders were prepared for such a sweeping decline.

There had been a rather general feeling in the financial district that an increase in the Federal Reserve rate, previously characterized as "the last resort" of the Federal Reserve Board by Chairman Young, would be preceded by a higher rate by the Bank of England, which has suffered a serious decline in its gold reserves as a result of heavy shipments to France. Consequently, when the London rate was announced as unchanged yesterday, no increase was looked for here.

Auburn auto suffered most, breaking 26¼ points. General Electric dropped 16, International Silver 15¼, American Telephone 15, and Atchison, Westinghouse Electric, American and Foreign Power, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Power and Light, and North American Company fell 10 to 13 points. Nearly two score others, including Packard Motors, National Cash Register, Consolidated Gas, American Tobacco issues, Montgomery-Ward, American International, and New York Central, sold 5 to 10 points lower. United States Steel, common, opened at 216, rallied above 217 and then fell to 214 for a loss of nearly 7 points.

May-Day Customs

As far back as the Medieval period in England, Chaucer says, it was customary to go out early on the morning of the first of May, "to fetch the flowers fresh." Hawthorne branches were carried home about sunset amid much merry-making. The name, The May, was given to the hawthorne, and the ceremony was called "the bringing home the May." A relic of the Roman custom when on May day the goddess Flora was especially honored is seen in the selection of a beautiful village maid to be crowned as queen of the May.

Theoretical Dollar

The term "compensated" or "stabilized dollar" was coined by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale in his book, "Stabilizing the Dollar." It is a theoretical dollar having a constant purchasing power. The theory of the compensated dollar is to convert the present gold standard into a true commodity standard—that is, to standardize the dollar as a unit of purchasing power. Thus, there would be a gold dollar of constant purchasing power with varying weight instead of a gold dollar of standard weight and varying purchasing power.

What Is Poverty?

Franz Schubert died and left great riches to the world—the riches of beauty translated through the glorious medium of music. Those who came to look into the attic of Schubert declared that he had died in poverty. He was the poor figure of financial tragedy. Lately a bit of his manuscript sold for $5,000. But that does not establish his wealth. The great riches he left are for those who can appreciate them. Men may die without money, but they need not die in poverty in the larger sense.—Grove Patterson in the Mobile Register.

Chief of Police Shot to Death

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—Chief of police Theodore Schutte, 45, of Elmwood Park, Ill., a suburb, was shot and killed early today by county highway police who had been summoned to suppress a disturbance in a roadhouse across the street from their station. Schutte, police reported, was drunk and threatened the highway policemen when they entered the place.

Eight policemen from the Morton Grove station answered the riot call from the Sans Souci roadhouse across the street. They found a score of men and women guests huddled in one end of the dining room.

A second after they entered, police said, Schutte, carrying a pistol in his hand, stepped from a side room. He raised the weapon towards the highway policemen, but a volley of shots felled him before he could fire.

William Lescun, owner of the roadhouse, told police that Schutte frequently had come to the place drunk and created disturbances. This morning, he declared, Schutte had fired a bullet into the floor, after herding the patrons in one end of the room.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 9 (AP).—Sister Celestine, acting Mother Superior of St. Patrick's Convent on Hayling Island, gave her life today to save sixty sick children and seven other nuns from fire which broke out in the island convent.

Sister Celestine, after discovering the fire, calmly directed the evacuation and then returned to the flaming building to make sure nobody had been forgotten.

She was overcome by the smoke and was found dead near the altar by firemen who arrived after all the other inmates had been saved. The convent was used by Roman Catholic authorities as a convalescent home for the poor children of London.

YOUNG MAN MISSING AT SAUGERTIES

Police Captain A. W. Richter of Saugerties was notified Thursday that LeRoy Lawton, aged 20 years of Bayonne, N. J., a city guest, had disappeared. The young man left his boarding place, Mrs. Murphy's on John street, Saugerties, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and has not been seen since. Lawton came to Mrs. Murphy's on Friday last, and when he left on Tuesday afternoon, wore his old clothes, a light shirt, brown pants, black shoes and blue sweater. All of his other clothes are still at Mrs. Murphy's home. Mrs. Murphy fears the young man may have been drowned in the upper creek as he frequently went in bathing. Lawton is a former resident of Saugerties, a son of Mrs. Katherine Joy Lawton and the late Hugh Lawton.

FATH... AND THREE ...LDREN SUFFOCATED

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 9 (AP).—Oakley Longway, 42, a laborer, and three of his ten children died from suffocation in a fire in the Longway second-story tenement today. The children were James, 7; Frederick, 6, and Francis, 4. Mrs. Longway carried an infant to safety and three other children jumped to the street from a window. They were unhurt.

The fire was confined to the room in which Longway and his three children were sleeping and was quickly brought under control by the fire department. Mrs. Longway was awakened by the crackling of the burning timbers and after carrying her infant child to safety attempted to re-enter the home to awaken her husband, but flames blocked her entrance.

Two Freight Cars Full of Ale.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Acting upon an anonymous tip, two inspectors of the customs bureau went to the Bronx yards of the New Haven railroad today and confiscated two freight cars which they found to contain 10,000 bottles of Canadian ale. The shipment, which had arrived earlier in the week by way of St. Albans, Vt., had been billed as hay and grain and consigned to a local grain dealer, whose name the authorities declined to divulge.

Three Killed in Airplane Mishap

Casper, Wyo., Aug. 9 (AP).—An airplane burst into flames and fell several hundred feet here last night, killing the pilot and two passengers. The victims were Major D. P. Wardwell, 32, of Casper, and Earl Holte, 30, and George Cameron of Worland, Wyo.

Wardwell, member of the Lafayette escadrille in the World War and later with the United States air force abroad, was the pilot of the plane. He had been engaged by the two for a flight over the city.

Wardwell came here with the United States geological survey and while in that service, organized the Wyoming Airways, Inc., of which he was manager at the time of his death. He is survived by a widow and four children.

CAN'T FIND A PLACE TO HANG SLAYER OF THREE

Miami, Fla., Aug. 9 (AP).—Denied use of either the roof of Broward county jail or the courthouse yard, Federal authorities today were without a place to erect a scaffold and gallows for the hanging of Horace Alderman, convicted slayer of three government officials in a sea fight off the Florida coast in 1927.

Under an order of Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter, Alderman must hang August 17 on the roof of the county jail. County officials, however, have demurred on the grounds that the roof of the jail is bonded by a roofing company and that use of it in this manner would cause the bond to be voided. The government, as second choice, asked if a scaffold and gallows could be erected in the courthouse yard, and this request was turned down.

Polos Defeat Hercules, 1 to 0, In Fast Contest

With Jack Robins, P. O.-Apollo pitcher, and Ken Best, Hercules' ace, tossing effective ball the Industrial League fans were treated to a real pitchers' duel Thursday evening at the Athletic Field, the Polos winning out in a last inning rally by a score of 1-0.

Both teams battled on even terms for six innings without either side being able to shove a man across the rubber, until finally in the last inning Hanley misjudged Johnson's liner and it went for two bases. Johnson reached third on an infield out and registered on a wild pitch.

Each pitcher allowed four hits, but Robins had better control, not issuing a pass, while Best handed out two in one inning which put him in a pinch, but he tightened up and managed to squeeze out of it.

Glaser was the only man on either team to get two hits. Johnson's two-bagger was the longest hit of the game.

Both teams played good ball on the defense, with Niles, Peterson and Davitt shining on the infield.

Two Star Bouts At Fair Grounds Tonight

Everything is ready for Bill Singer's weekly boxing show at the Kingston Fair Grounds tonight when a card that promises plenty of action is to be featured by two star 10-round bouts, bringing together Benny Bronoff of the Bronx vs. Teddy Siedman of California and Tommy Gervel of Philadelphia and Frankie Marchese of New York city. The program is scheduled to start at 8:15.

Bouts supporting the features are as follows:

San Sanchez, Mexico, vs. Ivan Hawes, New York, six rounds; Peter Couvaris, Greece, vs. Augustine Perez, Porto Rico, six rounds; Mickey Doyle, Pennsylvania, vs. Nick Fexon, New York, four rounds.

All indications point to a large attendance at tonight's fights. Tickets have been selling in a most encouraging manner and the usual large number who use the scraps from the reserve seats and ringside chairs will be in their places tonight.

Preparations are being made to handle one of the largest crowds of "bleacher" fans that ever visited the Fair Grounds to see a card of fights. Comments from many who occupy that section of the park to see the weekly bills indicate that the bleachers will be taxed to capacity tonight.

The members of Kingston Post, No. 154, American Legion, who usher at the Fair Grounds attractions each week, will be on the job early tonight to show reserve seat ticket holders to their places. A corps of Legionnaires also will act as guards at various places about the park to see that the usual number of "Gate-Eye Connelly" fans do not sneak into the Fair Grounds.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By William J. Chipman).
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The Yankees are on their way west for their final invasion possessed of whatever satisfaction there may be gleaned from having taken two out of three from the leading Athletics while themselves languishing almost a dozen games to the rear. The 6 to 4 victory of the Champions in Philadelphia yesterday carried with it the edge in the three-game series and reduced the margin of the Mackmen to a mere ten and one-half games.

Ten and one-half games with about eight weeks to go and still there are some who insist that the race is not yet over. Such die-hard Yankee fans as cling to a hope that the Macks may repeat the artistic blow-up the hugmen put on through the final third of the 1928 campaign may well take stock of the situation.

Pitted against George Walberg in the get-away game at Philadelphia yesterday, Herb Pennock so toyed with what at one time was a 6 to 1 lead that Wiley Moore was called from the bull pen with none out in the fifth. Mule Haas had just hit a homer and Cochrane had singled. Wiley, pitching five official innings, allowed just one hit, and in the National League would have received credit for the victory. The American Leagues rules, however, require a starting pitcher to go only four innings to win.

The battle of the leaders and the champions looked something like the married men versus the single men at a church picnic with Walberg and Pennock in the box, but with Jack Quinn and Moore in rescue roles the boys finished as they might have behind Matty and Plank. Sam Byrd's homer with one on the second did the Yankees no harm. Some 25,000 fans turned out for the melee.

A ninth-inning rally for four runs enabled Detroit to nose out the Indians at Cleveland by 9 to 6 and prevent Peckinpaugh's ambitious boys from stepping into third place. The Browns obligingly lost two games to the White Sox at Chicago by scores of 5 to 4 and 6 to 2, and fell back into a tie with Cleveland for third even in the face of the Indian defeat.

Washington again defeated the Red Sox at Fenway Park. The score was 4 to 3.

The only action along the National League front again took place at Pittsburgh where the Pirates won over the Cardinals by 5 to 1 behind Ervin Brames three-hit pitching.

The game was notable chiefly for the failure of Grover Cleveland Alexander to register his 373rd National League victory, which would have bettered the League record now shared by Old Pete and the late Christy Mathewson. A poor throw by Gelbert in the fourth paved the way for four Pirate runs which wrecked old Alex.

Fast Industrial Game at Athletic Field Saturday

Star baseball men of the Kingston and Poughkeepsie Industrial Leagues, who form crack teams to represent these two cities, will meet at the Athletic Field Saturday afternoon where a battle worth seeing will take place. The contest is slated to begin at 4 o'clock.

The cream of the two leagues will be seen in action. Fast, steady playing and superb hitting will probably feature this game. The first game the Kingston team revealed a fair brand of baseball, which then was lacking the fine edge. Since that time the local team got the practice required to bring their brand up to that well tuned string of perfection enabling them to cope with the best semi-pro teams in this section of the country.

All the teams from the Bridge City so far this season have been returning [illegible] the short end of the score [illegible] test with local teams. The [illegible] of the Poughkeepsie Industrials expects that his nine will turn the tables and hand the Kingston Industrials a decisive trimming.

The local team will line up with the following players: Culloton, 1b.; Davitt, 2b.; Sickler, ss.; Glaser, 2b.; Hoffman, Lay, Moore and Knight in the outfield; Smedes, c.; Peters or Volker, p.

At the next shoot August 15, the Ralph Trophy event will be shot at 6:30.

Up to present time Hopkins, Martin and Browning have each won one leg on this prize.

PONCKHOCKIE CARDS DEFEAT Y'S MEN.

The Ponckhockie Cardinals made the Y's Men bite the dust Wednesday night in a Capcymek League game at Pan-Am Park on the Saugerties road. The score was 6-5. "Dutch" Hahn pitched for the winners, with Krepple receiving his slants.

A five-game series with Union Hose is what the Cardinals are now after and hope that the fireman will accept their challenge.

Ruby Robins After Game.

The Ruby Robins, supported by a good record, would like to meet some of Kingston's ball clubs. The Robins prefer a three-game series, starting this Sunday. Any local team that would like to take the Robins on Sunday may arrange a game or a series by getting in touch with the Ruby manager, William Longendyke of 8 Hurley avenue.

Hartnett in Game.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 9 (AP).—Leo "Gabby" Hartnett, Chicago Cub catcher who has been kept out of action all season by an arm injury, worked behind the bat in a five-inning exhibition game here yesterday, and his arm behaved. The performance was very encouraging to Manager Joe McCarthy and the whole Cub team.

Wins Backstroke Title.

Honolulu, Aug. 9 (AP).—Eleanor Holm, Women's Swimming Association of New York, last night won the National A. A. U. 200-yard backstroke championship. Lisa Lindstrom, New York, the title holder, finished fourth. Miss Holm's time was three minutes, three and two-fifths seconds.

Generals at High Falls.

The Generals of Lake Katrine will play the High Falls team at that place Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The Generals after Sunday have no games booked in advance and would like to hear from any team wishing games.

Eye to Business

A young mother was having difficulty in persuading her four-year-old son to go to sleep, so on this occasion she promised him a handful of raisins, of which he was especially fond. The child smilingly subsided, and after a few minutes the nap appeared to have been begun, when he raised his head and asked, "Your handful or mine?"—Exchange.

Summer School for Grid Coaches

They Fight Hard

The Chicago Cubs of the National League are putting up a game fight for leadership in the senior circuit without the services of their star catcher. Going to the spring training camp in the "pink" of condition, Hartnett developed arm trouble which has since kept him out of all league games, with no prospect of any immediate relief. Such conditions rarely happen to ball players and the loss of his services proved a hard blow to his club. His aggressiveness and "pep" are needed at this time.

Bunny Brief Is Playing Baseball in Michigan

Bunney Brief, erstwhile home-run king of the American association, is back on the baseball diamond. Bunny, who quit organized ball this season and became a "big gas and oil man" in his home city, Traverse City, Mich., is managing and playing with the Traverse City Independents this season.

Brief, a veteran of 19 years in organized ball, 14 in the American association, turned down a contract for $5,000 with the Nashville of the Southern association this season. Brief desired to get started in business and opened a gas and oil business and he also let it be known that he was displeased with his sale by Milwaukee to the Nashville club. Brief contends that he had been assured he would be given his unconditional release by the Brewers.

Brief termed the action of the Milwaukee club as unsportsmanlike.

New Sod on Grid Field University of Illinois

The University of Illinois football team will have a new covering on the Memorial stadium field on which to engage opponents next fall. A new covering, costing around $3,000, has been placed and will be in excellent condition of the fall campaign which will get under way on October 5 when Kansas plays at Champaign.

A thick layer of sand was spread over the 120 yards of playing field between the goal posts after the sod and hard, caked dirt has been removed in order to provide a softer base, which also permits better drainage. The new sod will also afford better footing for football players than the old field.

In addition to playing Kansas on the new field, Illinois will engage Bradley, Michigan, Army and Chicago, in the order named, in the Illinois Memorial stadium this fall.

Turns Out Star

Outfielder Southern of the Phillies has not only developed into a hard hitter but he is a star in fielding. Much is expected of the rookie by Manager Bert Shotton.

Ant Hills a Nuisance

When they want to clear a piece of ground in Africa to make a landing field, they must take the ant hills into consideration. In northern Rhodesia recently it was necessary to remove 25,000 tons of ant hills and this work required the services of 700 natives for a period of five months.

Ed Rommel, Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg and George Earnshaw may make history this year while pitching the A's to a pennant.

Ray Pepper, playing the outfield for Rochester, is another graduate of University of Alabama. He was a football star, too.

* * *

Among the growing list of colleges who have abandoned baseball as a varsity sport are the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech.

Cy Young and Kil Nichols, who were each credited with pitching 70 games in one season, were satisfied with salaries of $3,000 a year.

Big scores were not unknown in baseball before the so-called lively ball was introduced. In 1897 Chicago beat Louisville by a score of 36 to 7.

Ty Cobb was the batting champion of the American league in 12 seasons, Honus Wagner in the National 8 seasons and Hornsby, so far, in 7 years.

* * *

The Baltimore Orioles have four of the fastest men in baseball in Johnny Neun, Harry Layne, Berney James and George Loepp. All are new men with the club.

Mike Rooney, baseball star at St. Bonaventure of Olean, N. Y., turned down offers from the Yankees in order to continue his study for the priesthood. He batted .500.

A new season's total for all organized baseball is in prospect this year. Last year 11,730 homers were recorded. They're going at an even faster clip this season.

* * *

At the age of thirty-three Paddy Driscoll, famous Northwestern star, is still playing football, basket ball and baseball around Chicago. And he has no intention of quitting soon.

Ernest Quigley, big league umpire and one of the best football officials in the United States, at one time or another has been an instructor of baseball, basket ball and football.

"Ted" Thelander, University of Wisconsin baseball pitcher for the last three years, who was graduated this year, has signed a contract with the New York National league baseball team.

* * *

Jack Doyle, the Cubs' veteran scout, and a member of the famous Orioles, is a cellar smeller. Jack says the real stars generally are found with the tail-end teams, and that is where he scouts.

* * *

J. H. Patrick, president of the Los Angeles baseball club, announces that Jack Lelivelt, former manager of the Milwaukee club of the American association, has signed a one-year contract to manage the Angels.

* * *

While only about 25 per cent of the opposing pitchers who have faced the Yankees this season have been southpaws, approximately 50 per cent of the club's setbacks have been sustained at the hands of the lefties.

Congressional "Pairs"

When a member of congress desires or is obliged to be absent, and the vote is expected, he seeks some member of the opposite party who would vote differently and makes an arrangement whereby neither will cast his vote on the question. This nullifies the effect of the member's absence and is called "pairing."

POULTRY

RIGHT FEEDS AND GOOD MANAGEMENT

Fowl That Consumes Most Rations Is Best Layer.

Have the early hatched pullets started to lay on the range? This is the question that leading poultrymen in New Jersey are asking themselves, as the method of handling these birds has everything to do with their production record this fall.

The men know that the expected molt can sometimes be avoided if the weight of the pullets after they come into production is maintained by feeding plenty of scratch grain. Just before the pullets begin to lay or when they are laying about 10 per cent on range, they are removed to their permanent laying quarters. Here the poultryman endeavors to get them in prime condition and, once he does so, tries to maintain it.

Proper feeds and a good system of management have been found essential if maximum feed consumption is to be secured. To lay eggs, feed is needed and the bird which consumes the largest quantity of a well-balanced ration, lays the most eggs.

Some poultrymen will be disappointed in the early-hatched pullets unless the birds have been carefully managed during the growing period, asserts L. M. Black, poultry specialist. It takes from five to six months to grow a Leghorn pullet properly. Longer than this is required for heavier breeds. According to Mr. Black, birds starting to lay at a younger age are often small and undersized and their eggs are likewise small. "Give the birds time to develop, furnish them with the necessities for proper development," he says, "and then have pullet eggs which can be sold as extras."

Gingko Tree Only One That Has No Enemies

Only one species of plant life now growing in the United States is without an enemy trying to take its life, Dr. William A. Taylor, chief of the bureau of plant industry, reported to the house appropriations committee during hearings in Washington.

"This unmolested tree is the Japanese ginkgo tree," Doctor Taylor stated. "So far as we know this tree has no insect or fungus enemy at the present time."

On a driveway leading to the United States Department of Agriculture buildings the street is lined on both sides with the ginkgo trees. In the fall they present a striking appearance, for as the yellow leaves fall they heap up on the sidewalks like piles of gold.

The ginkgo tree has a fruit, but one which the white man scorns. The nut inside is rather tasty, but as Doctor Taylor said, "it is surrounded by a most abominable smelling and tasting pulp. It smells more like salt-rising bread in the process of fermentation than any other thing. Chinese laundrymen pick up the fruits, take them home, clean them and eat the kernels."—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Cable Insulation

One can hardly see any connection between hoop skirts and the electrical industry, but one may be traced, strangely enough, which took place in the early days of the electrical development. The first cables were not insulated satisfactorily till Walter T. Glover, an Englishman who braided steel hoops with cotton, had an inspiration. Crinolines were going out, so was his business. So he used his machinery for insulating copper wire with cotton braid, and he soon had no cause to regret the passing of the crinoline.

Antagonism in Manchuria Grows

Tokyo, Aug. 9 (P)—Advices to Rengo News Agency from Manchuli, Manchuria, said the sound of heavy bombardment from the direction of Matsievskaya had been heard since 7 a. m. today. The inhabitants were much alarmed. It was believed here to be no more than a Soviet demonstration. Matsievskaya is just across the western Manchurian frontier, about 15 miles west of Manchuli. Although the press dispatches indicated an increasingly threatening situation official sources were inclined to discount much of what was reported as baseless rumor.

However, Sino-Russian antagonism in Manchuria has increased greatly, almost over night, and reports from Harbin, Mukden, Manchuli and other centers today indicated definite danger of serious developments.

Harbin dispatches to Rengo, Japanese News Agency, said it was reported from Vladivostok that the far eastern commander of Soviet forces there had issued to the Russian people a manifesto extremely belligerent in tone against China.

One Thing Certain

Some questions will forever remain unsolved. A back East physician once told a colored woman who had called to consult him in regard to an allgoneness, that her vitality was much run down. "Suppose," said he, brightly, using one of Doctor Holmes' questions for the purpose, 'you were packed in a barrel of snow. How much of it could you melt?" The lady shivered. "Ah dunno," she replied fervently, "an' what's mo', Ah ain't never goin' to find out."—Portland Oregonian.

Hernandez Found Dahlia

It was in 1570 that Philip II of Spain sent Francisco Hernandez to Mexico to compile an official report of the tree and plant life of New Spain. He sent seeds to the director of the Royal Botanic gardens in Madrid, who, says Nature Magazine, disseminated the dahlia throughout Europe. Hernandez found the dahlia, not as a wild flower, but in the cultivated gardens of the Aztecs.

Ancients Excelled in Art of Glass Staining

The medieval artists in stained glass toiled like jewelers setting diamonds and rubies. Their ideal was not a pretty picture made transparent, but a window made beautiful. Years of experimenting with various combinations of glass taught them secrets of design which resulted in windows that have never been surpassed.

Glass staining and glass painting are two quite different things. One method is to build up a mosaic of pieces of glass, colored not only on its surface but its very substance. The other is to paint the design upon white or colored glass.

It was in glass making that the ancients excelled. The blue of one school was so vibrant that the workers ground down sapphires to obtain their magic color. The fancy, although popular, is probably fallacious. Nevertheless, the colors of the ancients were so expertly compounded that they blended into a uniform whole in a completed window and never appeared flat or "raw."

The greens, for example, were not a straight mixture of blue and yellow, but a combination of blue and red and yellow in such proportions that they did not fuse into adjoining blues at a distance as do modern blue-and-yellow greens. The reds likewise were distinctive, as they contained alternating layers of red, and green-white gave a mellow softness to light before it reached the eye of the beholder.

Mendelssohn Hailed as Master of Philosophy

As a Jewish philosopher acting the part of a pioneer, Mendelssohn brought about the understanding of the beauty and humanism of the Bible, says a writer in the Boston Herald. He prepared a basis for the development of science and Judaism. His translation of the Pentateuch had inaugurated a new era in the education of the German Jews.

He gave to his brethren the German Bible, by which means he introduced them to the intellectual life of Germany, and thus through it once more into the civilization of the world at large. Mendelssohn has united Jewish and Hellenic life. He was the first to advocate the emancipation of the Jews. By his writings he contributed to a great degree to the removal of the brutal prejudices against the German Jews.

Mendelssohn died on January 4, 1786, and was deeply mourned, not only by his coreligionists, but also by all the learned world. His memory was celebrated as that of a "Sage like Socrates." The greatest philosophers of the day exclaimed: "There was but one Mendelssohn."

The government is to spend $29,000 for 3,090 acres of land in Polk county, Tex., for the Alabama and Coushatta Indians.

Opening Dance At Crosspatch

Willow, Aug. 9.—Crosspatch Community Center at Willow will give a dance Saturday evening, August 17. This is the first dance and entertainment of the summer season. Mrs. Ethel Gleason, of New York, who is spending some time with Mrs. Cross will be the guest of honor.

Crosspatch has been open in an informal way since July 7 when Mrs. Evelyn Cross, the founder and manager of the community work, came up from New York to open the house. She will stay until Labor Day.

The dance on August 17 is a sort of preliminary to the big costume ball which will be held Saturday, August 31. For the past two years the idea of a first informal "get-together" dance before the big party of the season has been found very satisfactory. Willow, although one of the most beautiful places in the state is rather a quiet spot and outside of the Crosspatch Community Center, there is no general meeting ground for the summer visitors and those who really live in the neighborhood and are fortunate enough to stay the year round.

Crosspatch dances are always very gay affairs and quite a number of young people from New York are coming up for the week end of the 17th to dance and renew the friendships of former seasons.

No admission is charged at the Crosspatch parties. Everybody is cordially welcome to come and bring the whole family and all their friends. Good will and neighborly sociability are the pass words of admission at Crosspatch. All the old neighbors and friends for many miles around usually wend their way to this well-known community center to have a really good time, whenever notice is given of a party.

So Crosspatch will be in holiday summer attire on Saturday, August 17 to welcome all its old and new friends from far and near.

Meanwhile the latch-string is out at Crosspatch every afternoon in the week except when Mrs. Cross goes to some of the neighbors for tea and bridge. Though Crosspatch is on a dirt road about half a mile from Willow and the state road it is a very popular place of call. Many visitors come to drink tea and chat on the shady porch and to take a look over the charming, quaint old house with its secret attic of legendary history and its carefully restored rooms, with their old-fashioned furnishings and here and there a modern touch for comfort. The house has electric light and all modern improvements but these are not obtrusive. The broad staircase has a frieze of silhouettes of children playing and these are quite attractive to grownups too. One of the upstairs rooms is called the "Ship Room" because the walls are covered with pictures of sailing vessels of olden times. A log cabin quilt on the bed in this room is a reminder of old-fashioned hand industry—1500 hours of hand sewing went into its making—the room is a place to loaf and invite your soul after the noise and heat of the city.

Crosspatch never has any settled program. It seeks to promote good will and good citizenship and cordially invites everybody to come and have a good time on Saturday, August 17.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The wholesale market on green peas was dull and weaker today. Supplies were moderate but the demand was generally light. New York up-state consignments wholesaled from $1.12 to $2.50, principally at $1.50-$2 per bushel basket. Colorado peas packed in crates of approximately 40 and 45 pounds sold from $2.50-$4. The pack of canning peas was reported less than was expected from the larger acreage. The yield of early varieties was light in New York and Wisconsin, but late varieties did better in the middle west and it appears likely that most of the increase in the pack will be in that section. New York peas showed condition of only sixty per cent in mid-July. Since then, the weather has been too hot and dry for peas most of the time.

The season's first carload of Elberta peaches from Illinois was received on the local market this morning. The fruit showed good color and quality and changed hands at $2.75-$3 per bushel basket. New York city's peach receipts during the previous seven days filled 404 cars. Supplies were drawn from nine states.

Arrivals of cantaloupes from Delaware and Maryland were liberal and prices tended lower. Jumbo crates of 36 cantaloupes peddled out at $1.50-$2.50 while the standard crates of the same number brought $1.25-$2.

Moore's early grapes have commenced to arrive in limited quantities from Delaware. The demand was exceedingly light in a lifeless market. Sales on 12-quart climax baskets were made at 70-90 cents. California malaga grapes packed in lugs of about 24 pounds sold at auction at $1.80-$1.85, while the seedless variety brought $2.10-$2.75 and as high as $3.30 on some really fancy fruit.

Virginia White Danish cabbage prices advanced with the tone strong and entirely in the seller's favor. Supplies continued light. Crates of approximately 100 pounds jobbed out at $5-$5.25. Western New York white domestic cabbage in bags of about 90 pounds realized $3.75-$4.50. Droughty conditions have slowed down the growth of the cabbage crop. In cabbage sections of New York, there is complaint of dry weather, aphis and worm injury. The condition in mid-July was 87 per cent, which compares with 66 per cent a year ago, but does not take into account the lack of enough rain in late July. The late set fields of Danish type cabbage will need more rain to make a good crop despite the increased acreage of these varieties.

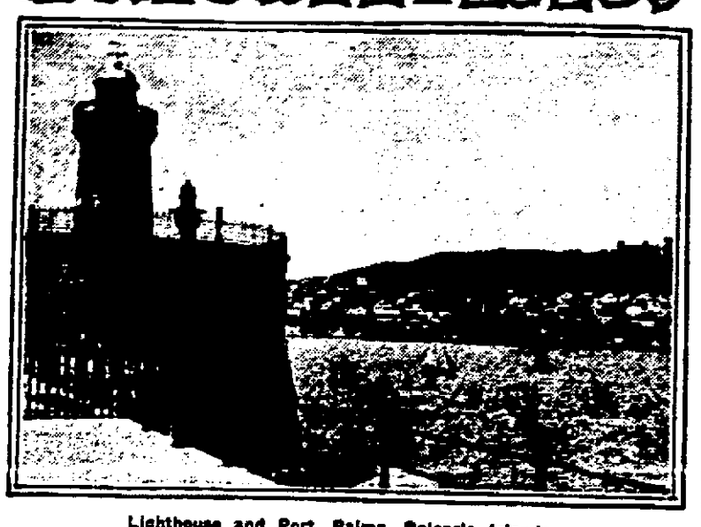
Balearic Isles



Lighthouse and Port, Palma, Balearic Islands.

THE Balearic islands, in the Mediterranean off the coast of Spain, are off the beaten path today, but once when that inland sea was the center of world culture these isles throbbed with life and activity.

There are five main islands in this Spanish group, and several islets. They are ruled as a military district, but the mother country has been wise enough to recruit the soldiers needed for discipline from among the islanders themselves, thus insuring a sympathetic rule.

Majorca is the main island. It is a delightful spot, not very well known even to Spaniards and almost wholly missed by the stream of outside tourists that courses through other parts of the Mediterranean. The island is almost square, about forty miles along each side, and lies as though hanging by a cord from the eastern end of the Pyrenees by one corner. Thus a corner points in each of the cardinal directions, while the sides are exposed to the northeast, the northwest, the southwest and the southeast.

Along the northwest side, which faces Spain, is a high mountain range whose loftiest peaks, nearly a mile high, bear patches of snow in winter. But even in the summer their tops are gleaming white, for they are of marble and the crests of many are devoid of vegetation. The lesser peaks and shoulders are clad in a mantle of dark green pines while lower are groves of ilex and flowering shrubs. On the gentler slopes of this northern coast and in its valleys man has placed vineyards and orange and olive groves. The whole panorama, sweeping from the blue sea through varying greens to the shining white peaks, makes a picture of incomparable loveliness.

It is south of the mountains that Majorca's garden spot is found, and the fertile plain that sweeps off from the foot of the range to the hills that rim the southeastern side of the island is called just that, the "Huerta." This level region supports many thousands of acres of almond and apricot trees, and in the spring is a vast sea of blossoms. Among the trees gardens are cultivated and grass is grown for pasturage. The hills that rim the plain have been terraced for centuries and on them rise tier after tier of grape vines and olive trees.

Palma Has an Ancient Site.

Palma, the capital of Majorca, lies in a broad bay that indents the southwestern side of the island just south of the high mountains. A city has existed there probably since the days of Carthage when colonists from that African empire occupied Majorca; but there is little evidence now of anything but Spanish influence. Scattered about the city are numerous interesting old palaces of the leading island families—one at least for almost every street. The population is about equal to that of Mobile, Ala., or Portland, Maine.

Majorca, like the Spanish mainland, was overrun by the Moors. For 500 years they held the island with Palma (then Mallorca) a flourishing Moorish city. It was a thorn in the side of the Spanish Christian kingdoms, however, for the Majorcan Moors became piratical in the Twelfth century and no Christian ship was safe. King Jayme I of Aragon organized a strong expedition which sailed from near Barcelona in 1229, and, after a siege, captured Palma. Soon the whole island was subdued and divided among Jayme's knights and soldiers. It has remained Spanish ever since and there is no trace of Moorish blood among its inhabitants.

The Spanish Majorcans followed in the footsteps of their Moorish predecessors in so far as developing nautical ability was concerned. As traders they rivaled the Genoese for a time and once dominated the entire western Mediterranean, controlling Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica, Malta and the Balearics. Palma had a great dockyard for galleys. In the middle of the Fourteenth century more than 30,000 sailors and 460 vessels were in the Majorcan service. The Majorcan navy constituted one of Christendom's chief bulwarks against the ravages of the Barbary pirates.

Minorca Looks Very English.

During their prime as merchant shippers, the Majorcans were famous as the leading geographers of Europe. They invented crude but effective instruments of navigation and drew the most reliable charts then known.

Minorca is the easternmost and second largest of the Balearic islands. No one visiting Majorca or Iviza, sister islands, would doubt their Spanish ownership once he mingled with the inhabitants or studied the architecture of their buildings.

But Minorca, although ruled by the Spanish king and but 27 miles east of Majorca, differs from its neighbor islands. Except in a few spots, its people and its buildings would fit an English village outside of London. Owing to early British occupation, Miss Minorca stays at home, while her Spanish sisters work side by side in the fields with their husbands; and instead of the soft oxhide Spanish sandal the Minorca maid wears shoes. And proudly she tells how Lord Nelson, during the war with France, came to Mahon, Minorca's capital, seized and lived in a mansion house overlooking Mahon's fine harbor.

In the protected inlets around the island are small fishing villages, made spotless by frequent coats of whitewash. Back of these villages the natives raise sufficient wheat for home consumption. Wine, olive oil, potatoes, hemp and flax are produced in moderate quantities; melons, pomegranates, figs and almonds are abundant; some cattle, sheep and goats are reared; and were it not for the scarcity of fuel, the lead, copper, and iron deposits could be profitably worked. Near Mercadal there are fine marble, limestone and slate quarries. Incidentally Mercadal is the ancestral home of Admiral Farragut.

In the Eighteenth century the British built a road from Ciudadela on the northwest coast to Mahon on the southeast coast. Travelers enjoy beautiful panoramas where some energetic Minorcan has taken pride in his estate, but unkempt spots are numerous. Stone monuments, caves, and historic relics have been discovered, but one has to penetrate deep into the fields and byways to find them. Ancient, windowless stone structures are found in the interior. Pottery and other antiquities are frequently unearthed by the natives. Scientists could, perhaps, trace their origin to prehistoric times or to the time when the Phoenicians, Greeks, Romans or Arabs occupied the island. Many of the stone monuments are falling to pieces and some of the pottery and historic implements now adorn stone walls where they were carelessly thrown by their finders.

Mahon Lacks Spanish Color.

Minorca could be expanded four times its natural size and then not match the area of Rhode Island. Its population could be housed in a small American city. More than half of the Majorcans live in Mahon, the capital, the most English spot on the island. From the steamship, the city has a Spanish aspect, with church belfries dominating the panorama. But in the streets, which rise terrace above terrace up the cliff side, English influence prevails. There is little Spanish color. Shining brass fixtures, square-paned windows with white frames, and unshuttered windows during the day time are decidedly non-Spanish.

At the other end of the British-made road, Ciudadela, while not as Spanish as Palma, Majorca, is not as English as Mahon. Like Mahon, it occupies the side of a cliff overlooking a fine harbor. Many of its buildings are whitewashed and even the nearby rocks are frequently given white coats along with the houses; but here and there a daub of color—pink, blue, green or yellow—and an occasional iron grill balcony lend a Spanish touch. The easy-going life of the Latin prevails in Ciudadela more than in Mahon. One of the most exciting events at Ciudadela is the arrival of boats from the other Balearic islands or from Barcelona.

Minorca's authentic history begins with the arrival of Mago, brother of Hannibal, in 210 B. C. He founded Mahon. The island was the cause of frequent conflicts between European sovereigns and the scene of pirate raids for centuries. Under British rule, Minorca prospered from the early part of the Eighteenth century until the Seven Years' war. The ownership of the little island also was involved in the American Revolution when the French and Spanish captured it while England was busy overseas. Sixteen years later, at the beginning of the long struggle with Napoleon, the British again captured Minorca and it remained British until 1802 when, under the Peace of Amiens, it passed to Spain.
